Rain Cracks Heat Wave; Cooler Air Due Today

Mass Is Expected Here From Canada; May Stay Awhile, Says Weatherman

A cooling thundershower last night spilled out of a sky that had been cloudy a good deal of the day, cracking Washington's six-day heat wave.

It is due (keep your fingers crossed) to stay cracked for a while beginning today—with the Capital's most eagerly awaited visitor, that celebrated cool Canadian air mass, expected from its home near Hudson Bay.

High for today should be about 86, said the weatherman. The long-range forecast called for "pleasant and less humid" temperatures over the weekend, with the weather warming up somewhat the first part of next week.

The thunderstorm that began at 7:10 last night, giving forth an estimated .85 of an inch precipitation by 10 p. m., was not an unmixed blessing.

Lightning Hits Barn

Out in Montgomery County lightning struck in three places between 7 and 8 p. m., causing $5000 damage in one but injuring or killing no one, except a lone calf.

The calf lost his life when lightning hit and burned the entire contents of a barn on the 325-acre farm of John T. Butts on Route 28 at Darnestown, Md.

The barn, a frame, two-story structure, with its contents of 30 tons of hay and 30 of straw, was destroyed, with damage placed at $5000. Volunteer fire departments from Gaithersburg, Washington Grove and Rockville went to the scene.

Lightning also struck a barn, tree and hay rick on the farm of Ray Roberts, near Laytonsville, Md., at 7:50 p. m., and a silo on the property of the Thomas & Co. canning factory at Gaithersburg, doing negligible damage.

73 Degrees at 10 p. m.

The rain brought the thermometer down from 90 at 6 o'clock to 73 at 10 last night.

Earlier in the day there had been a very slight break in the weather. The weatherman did his best but had to settle for 94 degrees at 1:54 p. m.—no ice-skating weather but still a few crumbs of relief from Thursday's record high of 97.

A total of 42,801 Federal workers and some 3000 District employes in non-air-conditioned buildings were let off work.

Last night's rain was described by the weatherman as a "prefrontal shower"—forerunning the Canadian air mass due today. It is this air front which, if it does arrive, should put a real crimp in the hot weather for the next few days. More rain is also forecast today.

Over the five days starting today the temperature average should be only about 2 to 4 degrees above normal, it was predicted. Normal this time of year is 84 high and 66 low.

Now about this Canadian air mass which is highballing here if it doesn't get derailed:

It originated northwest of Hudson Bay, has been moving across Quebec and into New York State and at 6 o'clock last night was about 200 air miles from Washington.

In the previous 48 hours this cool and joy-bringing air had moved over 300 miles but the weatherman looked for a step-up in its rate of travel, railroading it into Washington today. Cloudiness and "occasional showers or thunderstorms" are also slated for today.

Symington Dares Van Zandt To Repeat 'Rumors' Outside

REP. JAMES VAN ZANDT
"I hope this investigation will clear the air"

W. STUART SYMINGTON
". . . a disgraceful way to use congressional immunity"

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

In an angry clash on Capitol Hill yesterday, Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington charged Representative James E. Van Zandt (R., Pa.) with "disgraceful use of his Congressional immunity" and dared him to repeat off the House floor, his charges of Air Force wrong-doing.

Symington also dropped something of a bombshell by announcing he had discovered the authors of the mysterious "anonymous document" which has been circulating through Government circles.

Its accusations against USAF officials largely parallel those aired on the House floor by Van Zandt. Symington did not disclose the names he has but declared he has turned them over to the House probers.

The bitter row came near the close of a House Armed Services Committee hearing into alleged irregularities in the Air Force's B-36 procurement program. A House speech by Van Zandt repeating "ugly rumors" about the B-36 brought about the investigation.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.), had called upon the Pennsylvanian to substantiate his statements, specifically one Van Zandt had said came from "sources he couldn't ignore."

Amid much hubbub, the latter started to comply. He cited newspaper columns by Danton Walker in the Washington Times-Herald and by Nicholas Gregory in the Philadelphia Inquirer and an "anonymous letter."

Symington broke in to say he didn't care about Van Zandt's accusations that "we were wrong in buying the B-36" but when he charged "the entire high command with mass conspiracy" it was different.

"I take bitter exception to that when I learn it is just based on newspaper reports and anonymous letters," he declared. "That's a rather disgraceful way to use congressional immunity.

"If he believes what he says,

Foes Drop Committee Arms Fight

Hopes Brighten Plan Can Reach Floor of Congress Almost Unchanged

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Signs of weakening opposition to the $1,450,000,000 arms aid program yesterday brightened Administration hopes the bill may reach the Senate and House floors without material change.

Representatives Richards (D., S. C.) and Vorys (R., Ohio), who led and barely lost a fight to cut $580,495,000 from the bill in the House Foreign Affairs Committee Thursday, indicated yesterday they will not renew their battle in committee.

Both believe an attempted cut stands a better chance on the House floor, although other members may yet attempt to reduce the bill in committee.

Amendment Ruled Out

Committee Chairman Kee (D., W. Va.) yesterday said he ruled out of order an amendment to cut 50 per cent of the proposed $1,160,000,000 aid for western Europe on grounds it paralleled Richards' amendment, defeated on an 8-to-8 tie.

Kee forecast final committee action Monday on the bill, which provides $1,160,990,000 cash to help rearm Western European members of the North Atlantic Treaty, $211,370,000 for Greece and Turkey, and $27,640,000 for Iran, Korea and the Philippines.

In other action on the arms bill:

1. By a vote of 13 to 12, the combined Senate Foreign Relations-Armed Services Committee voted to ask Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Vice Admiral Oscar C. Badger to return from the Far East to testify on the arms bill.

This action was taken despite MacArthur's announcement in Tokyo he does not want to return to this country now because of his responsibilities in Japan.

Hearings to End

2. Senator Connally (D., Tex.), chairman of the combined Senate committee, announced that because of the time pressure involved, the committee does not plan to hold further hearings, but will begin "marking up" the bill Monday.

The Senate committee has not heard any opposition witnesses to the program. Senator Connally said his committee will have available opposition testimony given in the House.

Others who seek to testify against the bill, including Henry Wallace and Norman Thomas, he said, may submit their views in statements.

3. Senator Dulles (R., N. Y.), on behalf of himself and Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), was in frequent consultation with the State Department in an attempt to agree on the relationship of the arms plan to the North Atlantic Treaty.

Both Senators have opposed the bill as drafted, saying they fear it will subordinate the treaty.

RFC Loan Suggested

4. Plans to seek authority for a large cash advance from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation—to get the aid plan under way if authorized, without waiting for an appropriation—were reported advancing.

It has been generally expected an attempt will be made to boost the bill's present provision of 125 million dollars in RFC advances. Otherwise, the rapidly approaching end of the congressional session could preclude appropriations action.

Chairman Kee said he is hopeful the bill can clear the House Foreign Affairs Committee "without any substantial reduction."

He said he is not "violently opposed" to a formula to provide 60 per cent of the requested $1,450,000,000 in cash and the balance in contract authorizations.

Secretary of Defense Johnson previously said this would be acceptable to the Administration after Senator Vandenberg discussed a 50 per cent cash and 50 per cent contract authorization proposal.

Purpose of this is to avoid laying out all the cash at this time and provide some opportunity to

Waitt's Two Reports

Officers Officially Praised, But Are Belittled Privately

General Waitt Accused of Trying 'To Cut Throats' Of Rivals For Job

Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt, suspended chief of the Army Chemical Corps, yesterday was accused of trying to "cut the throats" of possible rivals in an effort to hold on to his job.

The Senate subcommittee investigating "5-per centers," or "influence peddlers," was given this account of what one Senator described as an "ingenious plot" involving General Waitt, Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, White House military aide, and James V. Hunt, high-fee management counselor:

1. General Waitt, whose term of office was to expire this autumn, went to Hunt's office in the Barr Building. There he dictated two documents to Miss Mildred Ortmeyer, Hunt's secretary.

Taken to Vaughan

One was an appraisal of General Waitt himself and the other a series of commentaries on eight fellow officers eligible to succeed him.

His "autobiography," made to look as if someone else had written it, was full of self-praise. The other document contained so many unflattering remarks about his potential rivals that a Senator made the remark that nobody seemed qualified but Waitt.

2. Miss Ortmeyer took General Waitt's report on the eight other officers to the White House for delivery to General Vaughan.

Senator McCarthy (R., Wisc.), after listening to this testimony at yesterday's hearing, concluded that the President's military aide was to determine who should be chief of the Chemical Corps.

Senator Mundt (R., S. Dak.) exclaimed:

"It looks to me like an ingenious plot by which Vaughan, Waitt and Hunt had connived to cut the throats of the other officers so Hunt could use Waitt as a conduit to his office."

Official Reports Made Also

It had been brought out earlier that General Waitt promised a contract to one of Hunt's clients.

William P. Rogers, committee counsel, pointed out that the official fitness reports General Waitt wrote on the other officers were much more commendatory than the evaluations he wrote "behind their backs" for transmission to General Vaughan.

Senator O'Conor (D., Md.), who was presiding in the absence of Senator Hoey (D., N. C.), ruled that in fairness to the other officers, their official fitness reports should go into the record along with the others.

General Waitt was suspended as chief of the Chemical Corps July 16, along with Maj. Gen. Herman Feldman, Quartermaster General, who also was claimed as a close friend by Hunt.

Secretary of the Army Gray, in explaining Waitt's suspension, said the Senate inquiry had turned up evidence "which indicates that General Waitt improperly furn-

What Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt, suspended chief of the Army Chemical Corps, wrote about eight fellow officers in his official capacity and what he wrote "behind their backs"—provided the 5-percenters inquiry yesterday with a striking parallel.

He included the least flattering remarks in a memorandum to Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, written in third person. Below are examples:

First Lady Sent Note of Thanks To Manufacturer, Capitol Hears

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Mrs. Harry S. Truman, wife of the President, was sent a deep-freeze unit by the company that employed John Maragon and wrote the manufacturer a thank-you note, it was said at the Capitol yesterday.

The information came from an official source after the Senate subcommittee investigating 5-per-centers again delayed identifying big-name recipients of the freezers.

The First Lady, the source said, sent the letter of appreciation to Albert J. Gross, Milwaukee manufacturer who shipped the deep-freeze unit, and signed it "Bess Truman" over the typewritten signature of Mrs. Harry S. Truman.

Gross, it was said, replied to the letter and explained that the donor of the freezer was not himself but the Albert Verley Co. of Chicago, dealer in essential oils supplied to perfume and soap firms. The Verley Co., it was reported, paid $2625 for the freezers sent here, $375 apiece.

Maragon, who has described himself as a "good friend" of Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, White House military aide, was employed by the Verley Co. in 1945-47 and for a two-month period last autumn.

Bills of lading ready to be submitted as evidence, it was said, indicated that the deep-freeze unit was sent to Mrs. Truman at the family home in Independence, Mo., and that two of the machines were sent to General Vaughan in Washington.

Others, besides Mrs. Truman and General Vaughan, to whom the freezers were sent, the invoices were said to indicate, were the following:

Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson, who said during a White House visit yesterday he felt that he ought not to make a statement but ought to let the committee develop the matter.

White House Secretary Matthew J. Connelly, who offered no comment.

James K. Vardaman, now a member of the Federal Reserve Board and former Naval Aide to President Truman, who said: "I didn't get a deep freeze. I don't know Gross, and I never heard of the Verley company. It's beyond me."

Confusion over the identity of the freezer recipients followed the committee's action Thursday afternoon when it agreed to halt further testimony by Gross until the committee's staff could do some checking.

It was felt that, in interest of fairness, those on the list ought to be asked if they actually accepted the units and if they allowed the Verley Co. to pay for them.

The names of Mrs. Truman and others already had been passed along to reporters.

It was expected Gross would go on the stand yesterday morning and put the names in the record.

A news service sent the names humming over the wires early in the day.

However, when the subcommittee met shortly after 10 a. m., Chairman Hoey announced the staff members had not been able

Gen. Collins Named as New Chief of Staff

Gen. Handy Will Get Clay's Old Post as European Commander

By The Associated Press

The Army yesterday got a new Chief of Staff and a new commander for its forces in Europe.

Gen. Joseph Lawton Collins was picked for the top spot by President Truman. Now Vice Chief of Staff, he was nominated by the President to succeed Gen. Omar N. Bradley, who was named Thursday to the Nation's highest military post—Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Both selections are subject to Senate approval.

For the European command, Gen. Thomas T. Handy was named by Secretary of Defense Johnson to fill the post held until recently by Gen. Lucius D. Clay, retired. Handy, a 57-year-old veteran of both World Wars, has been serving as head of the Fourth Army at San Antonio, Tex.

General Handy is a native of Tennessee and graduate of the Virginia Military Institute. In his new assignment he will command all United States military forces in Europe except those in Austria and Trieste.

Lieut. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner, who has been acting commander in chief since Clay's return home, will remain as commanding general of the Army's forces in Germany.

Collins, who became known as "Lightning Joe," was born in New Orleans May 1, 1896. He was

Soviet Brands Yugoslavia as Enemy in Note

Charges Government Joins 'Imperialists' To Oppose USSR

By Eddy Gilmore

Moscow, Aug. 12 (AP).—Russia today branded Yugoslavia as an enemy of the Soviet Union and an ally of foreign capitalists.

In a note to Belgrade, Russia charged the Yugoslav government is in a bloc with the Western Powers and "more and more is pointing up with imperialist circles against the USSR."

"Let the people of Yugoslavia know," the Russian note said, "the Soviet governmnet looks on the present Yugoslav government not as a friend and ally but as an enemy and adversary of the Soviet Union."

The note was the fourth in a series of bitter diplomatic exchanges over what the government of Premier Marshal Tito regards as Russia's abandonment of Yugoslav territorial claims at the recent Big Four Foreign Ministers' Conference in Paris.

The Kremlin attack on Yugoslavia, made public by the Moscow radio, said the Tito government, as early as April, 1947, was willing to abandon its basic claims for Austrian territory as compensation for war losses, but wanted to toss the responsibility for this decision to the Soviet government.

(At the Paris conference, Russia sided with the United States, Britain and France in rejecting Yugoslavia's claim for a slice of southern Austria. Prior to that meeting the Soviet Union had supported the Yugoslav demands.

(The Soviet note referred to Yugoslavia as an "enemy" for the first time despite the fact Tito and the Kremlin have been at political odds for more than a year. In June, 1948, Tito and his top Com-

A 49-year-old church sexton was arrested yesterday after he shot and seriously wounded his wife, and threatened to shoot his year-old granddaughter.

In a struggle with his daughter for the revolver he used she told police, the gun was discharged once, but the shot went wild.

The husband was booked at the Seventh Precinct Station as Louis Biffer Elze of 4542 MacArthur blvd. nw., where the shooting occurred. The wife, Mrs. Augusta W. Elze, 37, was in Georgetown University Hospital with three flesh wounds in her left arm and a wound in her left breast, near her heart.

Donald V. Beach, 21, a mechanic, son-in-law of the Elzes, and Mrs. Mary Beach, 18, the daughter, told police that this is what occurred:

The Elzes have been separated for about four months, they said, and in that time, Elze has come to the home and beaten up his wife twice and Mrs. Beach once. Another time, they said, he smashed locks off the doors of the home.

About 4:30 p. m. yesterday Mrs. Elze and the Beaches were in the living room and the Beaches' daughter, Donna Marie, 1 year old, was playing in a tub of water in the yard outside.

Elze entered, pulled "a handful of bullets" from one pocket, and a .32-caliber revolver from another.

"I'm here to do what I said I was going to do last night," they quoted him as saying. "See, I've got what I want.'"

Mrs. Elze than ran to a middle room of the house with Elze after her. Mrs. Beach grabbed him, but he shook her off. He began firing at Mrs. Elze as she reached a rear screen door and apparently turned to face him. She fell.

Then, Mr. and Mrs. Beach said, Elze ran back toward the front of the house and out the front door, again with Mrs. Beach in pursuit. As he reached the front yard, he pointed the gun at Donna Marie and said, "I'm going to kill her, too."

Mrs. Beach grabbed him again and began a tussle in which the gun was discharged once. However, no one was wounded by that shot.

William C. Hazel, 49, a District Water Department employe, who lives at 4550 MacArthur blvd., was sitting on his porch and heard the shot. He ran to the Elze yard, and disarmed Elze.

When police arrived, they said they found a half-pint whisky bottle, nearly empty, on Elze, and that he had been drinking.

Elze was booked on charges of

'Gone With Wind' Author Reported As Near Death

Atlanta, Aug. 12 (AP). — Margaret Mitchell, author of "Gone With the Wind," hovered near death today, victim of a speeding car.

Police said the creator of the famous Civil War romance was slammed to the pavement last night by a drunken driver and dragged 15 feet.

A doctor at City Hospital said she still was unconscious and that her condition is critical.

The hospital said "thousands of calls" made it necessary to set up a special information desk to handle queries about her.

Immediately after her arrival last night she was placed under an oxygen tent. Today, two prominent brain specialists were called.

Hospital attendants said Miss Mitchell was too ill to be moved even for X-rays, much less to a private hospital.

The 43-year-old Miss Mitchell—in private life Mrs. John Marsh—suffered a possible skull fracture, internal injuries and an injury to one leg. Her face was badly bruised.

Miss Mitchell and her husband were on their way to a neighborhood theater when she was struck.

Shaw's First Postwar Play To Open Today

Malvern, England, Aug. 12 (U.P.). George Bernard Shaw, who once told a reporter that if a man wrote a play at 90 it would be "all piffle," will present his first postwar effort, written at the age of 92, at the annual Malvern dramatic festival Saturday. Shaw was 93 last month.

Shaw calls the play "Buoyant Billions" and, in the preface to the printed text, said, it is "the best one I can do in my dotage."

Shaw chose Malvern for the first presentation because it is the only festival in the world dedicated to a living playwright—himself.

Only 100 copies of "Buoyant Billions" will be printed before the plates of this special edition are destroyed. The volumes will sell for $25.20 each.

"Buoyant Billions" is in four parts and the scenes range from a billionaire's private study to Panama, which Shaw saw 49 years ago.

Boy, 2, Only Slightly Injured In 4-Story Fall Out Window

An orange crate yesterday saved a 2-year-old boy from death or serious injury in a four-story fall from a front room window.

The child, John Howes, 21 6th st. ne., escaped with a minor concussion and slight scratches after he crashed onto the crate, standing in an areaway below the Howes' third-floor apartment. The crate, breaking the fall, was smashed.

The boy's father, Robert Howes, an employe of Ryan's funeral home, 317 Pennsylvania ave. se., had returned home for lunch and had just parked his car when a daughter, Joan, 13, came running with the news of the accident.

Howes rushed the lad to Casualty Hospital, where examination showed no bones were broken. However, the child was admitted for overnight observation.

As Howes reconstructed the accident, the boy climbed a hassock to peer outside when an older brother, Bobby, 9, called from the street.

Probe of Lobbying Is Voted by House

In Senate

Truman Asks Passage of Reform Bills

By The Associated Press

President Truman, threatened with defeat of his first two Government reform plans, yesterday told the Senate that if they fail the whole reorganization effort "will be imperiled."

Right after his letter was read, Democratic Leader Lucas of Illinois advised the Senate he will call up both plans Tuesday. The Senate Executive Expenditures Committee has acted unfavorably on them.

Reorganization plan No. 1 would turn the Federal Security Agency into a Cabinet rank Department of Welfare. It would take over the Public Health Service, the Social Security Administration and the Office of Education, now under FSA.

Plan No. 2 would shift the Bureau of Employment Security, which handles jobless pay and job replacement, into the Labor Department.

Unless House or Senate disapproves, the plans become effective next weekend under the reorganization law. It gives Congress 60 days after a plan is submitted to kill it by adverse vote of either chamber.

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Without a dissenting vote, the House yesterday decided to investigate lobbying in Washington.

Under terms of the resolution introduced by Representative Buchanan (D., Pa.), Speaker Rayburn (D., Tex.) was authorized to name a seven-man committee with sweeping investigative powers.

The investigating committee will have subpena power and a wide scope of action. Its field includes not only lobbyists for private interests, but all activities of Federal agencies intended to influence, encourage, promote or retard legislation.

During discussion of the resolution Representative Sabath (D., Ill.) said he understood some 158 lobbyists in the first three months of this year "spent or had spent on them over two million dollars."

Representative Marcantonio (A. L., N. Y.) proposed an investigation of the operation of rent control under Housing Expediter Tighe Woods.

Marcantonio said he did not care to discuss the "sinister influences" by which Woods got his job, but did want to tell the House that "tenants are being fleeced" by a loose administration of the rent law.

"Woods goes out of his way to turn his office into an annex for the real estate industry," Marcantonio said.

J. V. Hunt, central figure in the current inquiry into 5 per centers in Washington, has said he introduced Woods to Frank Creedon and that shortly thereafter Woods was appointed rent control administrator.

Not Discussed

No Marriage Plans, Says Barkley

By The Associated Press

Vice President Barkley insisted all over again today that he hasn't popped the question to that attractive St. Louis widow—and he indicated that in any case there'll be no elopement.

When a newsman called his attention to a report that there might be a runaway wedding, the 71-year-old "Veep" cracked:

"I don't know any reason why I should have to elope unless my mammy and pappy wouldn't give their consent."

More seriously, he said the matter of matrimony "has never been discussed, even on the fringes" between him and Mrs. Carleton S. Hadley.

"I'm trying to protect a very charming woman from rumors or even deductions," he said.

But he's seeing her again this weekend. His home-town, Paducah, Ky., is dedicating an airport "Barkley Field" in his honor tomorrow, and Mrs. Hadley and his daughter will be there as his guests. He may take them to St. Louis Sunday before coming back here.

Barkley attended a Cabinet meeting yesterday and saw President Truman sign a bill authorizing a gold medal honoring the Vice President for his long Government service.

Mrs. Truman Got Freezer, Capitol Hears to finish their checkup on the freezer. Accordingly, he said, the testimony of Gross would have to be delayed again.

Chairman Hoey, visiting the White House later on a matter having nothing to do with the investigation, told reporters General Vaughan had volunteered to testify.

He said Vaughan called him up last week, several days in advance of the start of public hearings, and said he would be "glad" to appear as a witness.

Hoey told reporters he explained to the White House military aide it would be best to wait until the subcommittee has a full picture so General Vaughan could answer all the allegations at one time.

Senator McCarthy said at yesterday's hearing Vaughan ought to be heard in view of President Truman's remarks at a White House news conference Thursday.

A reporter asked Mr. Truman then if he thought General Vaughan acted with propriety when he helped promoters of the Tanforan race track in California get scarce building materials at a time when veterans were crying for housing.

Mr. Truman told the reporter he didn't know whether that was a fact and that the reporter didn't know either.

Senator McCarthy pointed out that Housing Expediter Tighe Woods had told about Vaughan's part in the Tanforan case. He said it looked as if Mr. Truman doubted the testimony of his "own appointee."

General Vaughan steadfastly has declined to make a public statement since the revelations began about his association with James V. Hunt, Maragon and others.

When Manufacturer Gross testified Thursday about the deep-freeze units, it was not brought out when he actually shipped them.

Gross testified that the Albert Verley Co. paid for the freezers, but didn't say who actually placed the order.

While Gross was in the witness chair, Senator McCarthy remarked that among those who worked for the Verley Co. were Maragon, a traveling representative, and Harry Hoffman of Milwaukee, who handled Verley advertising.

Maragon, who joined Verley August 1, 1945, has said he doesn't know anything about the freezers.

In Milwaukee, it was said yesterday, Hoffman was out of town.

The freezer shipments were reported at the Capitol to have started in 1945. Chief Justice Vinson was for part of that year Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion.

On July 23, 1945, he became Secretary of the Treasury, a post he held until he became Chief Justice in 1946.

Vardaman was White House Naval Aide with the rank of commodore in 1945.

A member of the Senate subcommittee said yesterday that one of those on the list of freezer recipients was under the impression that the unit was a gift from General Vaughan.

When White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross was asked at his morning news conference about the report Mrs. Truman got one of the freezers, he said:

"I have no information whatever about that."

Told the report also mentioned Chief Justice Vinson and several others, he said:

"I know nothing whatever about that, either."

The Chief Justice visited the White House to see President Truman sign a bill authorizing a $2500 gold medal to be presented to Vice President Barkley for his "outstanding contribution to the general welfare."

Asked by reporters to comment on the deep-freeze affair, the Chief Justice said:

"I believe I prefer that the matter be developed by the committee . . . I feel that I ought not to make any statement."

graduated from the Military Academy and was commissioned a second lieutenant April 20, 1917. He is a veteran of both world wars.

After World War II Collins became deputy commanding general of the Army Ground Forces in Washington.

He became director of information for the old War Department in 1945. On September 1, 1947, he was named the Army's Deputy Chief of Staff, now known as Vice Chief of Staff.

Collins had a distinguished record in action in the last World War. He commanded troops in Guadalcanal before going to Europe. In Europe, he commanded the Seventh Army Corps, which landed on Utah Beach in Normandy on D-Day. His troops captured Cherbourg.

Later Collins, corps spearheaded the attack of the First Army which made the break-through east of St. Lo. After numerous engagements in France and Belgium, the Seventh Corps broke through the Siegfried Line defenses and captured Aachen. His troops participated with the First Army in the drive to the Rhine and the capture of Cologne.

Collins finally led the corps in its drive to the Elbe River where it made a junction with the Russians advancing from the East.

It was understood that Collins was Bradley's personal choice for his successor as Chief of Staff. They served together in Europe.

Probers Hear Waitt Accused

ished personnel data to an individual not in the military service and who was not entitled to receive such data."

Yesterday's hearing began with the reading of letters and memoranda dealing with Hunt's work for the Deering-Millikin Research Trust, a Greenwich, Conn., organization that sought Government contracts. Hunt had agreed to represent it here for $800 a month and a bonus.

Hunt, the records showed, had given as his references to Deering-Millikin the names of Dr. John Steelman, the Assistant to the President; Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), Air Secretary Symington, Generals Waitt and Feldman, and Maj. Gen. Anthony R. McAuliffe, who told the Germans "Nuts!" when they demanded surrender at Bastogne in the Battle of the Bulge.

One of Hunt's letters to Deering-Millikin dated March 16, 1949, said General Waitt had confirmed that a contract was "in the making" and that it would be the "forerunner of others."

The story of General Waitt's visit to Hunt's office and his belittling comments on his fellow officers was in testimony given before the Inspector General of the Army on July 7.

Committee Counsel Rogers read from the testimony given on that date by Miss Ortmeyer. This told how General Waitt called at Hunt's office, spoke briefly to Hunt, and then began to dictate to her the commentaries on his possible rivals.

Asked why this was done, Miss Ortmeyer said:

"To the best of my knowledge it was information in which General Vaughan was interested."

She said Vaughan had an appointment with Waitt and "was in a hurry" for the memorandum.

Miss Ortmeyer was in the committee room while Rogers read her testimony. An attractive brunette, she was wearing a black dress and a straw hat surmounted by poppies.

In her July testimony, she couldn't recall who told her to take the memorandum to the White House, but she said it had to be Hunt or General Waitt. She said she delivered the memorandum to Mrs. Nora Miller, General Vaughan's secretary.

Asked what she said to Mrs. Miller, she replied: "I said, 'How are you Nora?'"—a bit of testimony that evoked laughter in the committee room.

The evaluation that General Waitt dictated about himself was found in the Hunt files and there was no evidence it had been shown to General Vaughan.

It began: "General Waitt is recognized as one of the leading authorities in the world on the subject of toxicological warfare."

Further down was the statement:

"There is no officer in the Chemical Corps who has had as wide experience as General Waitt."

"The Garsson case," it said at another point, "was something General Waitt inherited, as he had nothing to do with procurement or production during the war. . . ."

This referred to the 1946 congressional inquiry into the Garsson contract fraud case. At the time General Waitt drew official criticism for having social relations with the Garsson brothers.

Committee Counsel Rogers, in handing reporters copies of Waitt's "behind-their-backs" remarks on fellow officers, made sure they got copies also of what Waitt said in appraising them in official fitness reports.

The committee was unable to get the official report on Brig. Gen. Edwards Montgomery.

Other Reports Cited

Waitt said officially Col. Charles E. Loucks had "great ability," but told General Vaughan he was "slow" and lacked "drive." He said in one instance that Col. Maris E. Black was one of his "most effective officers," but in the other said he had "no competence or interest in . . . research and development."

He said, in a fitness report, that Col. John MacArthur was a man of tremendous drive, not self-seeking, the type who does work for which others are rewardad; but told Vaughan he was "extremely nervous" and it was doubtful if he could "absorb the punishment" of the top job.

Maj. Gen. Paul J. Mueller, who wrote the last fitness report for Col. Henry M. Black, said Black had a "superior" rating. General Waitt told General Vaughan Black had "no competence and technical ability."

U. S. Steel Aide Picked to Head Arms Board

By the United Press

President Truman yesterday nominated Carl A. Ilgenfritz, vice president of the United States Steel Corp., to be chairman of the Munitions Board, which has responsibility for military buying programs.

Ilgenfritz, if confirmed by the Senate, will succeed Donald F. Carpenter, who resigned in June to return to his job with E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.

The second businessman to be chosen to head the Munitions Board, Ilgenfritz has been vice president of U. S. Steel since December, 1946. Before that, he was an executive of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., and the Republic Steel Corp.

He already is a member of Munitions Board committees on nonferrous metals and iron and steel, and also has been acting as an adviser to the Federal Bureau of Supply.

He was a member of the Hoover commission on Government reorganization, and served as an adviser to the State Department on the question of international tin supplies.

A native of Youngstown, Ohio, Ilgenfritz would take charge of the military agency that has the chief job of planning the military side of mobilization in event of another war.

Busy Lawmakers Put Off Dispute On Foreign Aid

By The Associated Press

Busy lawmakers postponed yesterday until at least Monday any action on settling a Senate-House dispute over the multi-billion-dollar foreign aid bill.

House members of a joint conference committee asked for the delay because of other business, committee clerks said. The next meeting may be scheduled Monday afternoon.

Already six weeks behind schedule, the bill is snarled in a Senate-House dispute over a Senate amendment providing $344,000 to continue operations of a congressional watchdog committee.

Union Man Takes Oath He's No Red

By the United Press

Donald Henderson yesterday filed a non-Communist affidavit with the Government after resigning two weeks ago as president of the Food, Tobacco and Agricultural Workers (CIO) to avoid doing so.

He said he filed the flat "I-am-not-a-Communist" statement to enable the union to participate in collective bargaining elections sponsored by the National Labor Relations Board under the Taft-Hartley labor-management law.

Henderson stepped down as president of the union two weeks ago and took over as administrative director. The new president and other officials of the union then signed non-Communist affidavits in the belief that would qualify the union to take part in NLRB elections.

But the Labor Board said it felt Henderson still was an officer and the affidavits from the other officers would not be accepted. It gave the union until yesterday to prove Henderson no longer was an officer.

When the deadline arrived, the union filed a new slate of union officers which included Henderson. Attached was an affidavit by Henderson that he "is not a member of the Communist Party" and that he does not believe in it.

Symington Dares Van Zandt

the least he should do is to repeat it over the radio so we can have proper recourse."

Van Zandt replied that he was simply carrying out his "duties as a member of Congress."

"I made no charges nor accusations," he declared. "I simply repeated to the House the rumors that were all over Washington and were affecting service morale. I hope this investigation will clear the air."

After the committee recessed—probably until August 22—Van Zandt issued a statement charging that Symington and Vinson were trying to "discredit me" instead of clearing up the "ugly and disturbing reports" about the B-36.

Declining Symington's "childish challenge for a debate on the radio," he declared:

"Chairman Vinson is evidently engaged in a white wash job on the B-36 bombzer. . . . Instead of investigating the effectiveness of the B-36 . . . Chairman Vinson and Secretary Symington are trying to devert public attention by attacking me."

Before closing yesterday's hearing, Vinson appointed a subcommittee to fly to California next week to take testimony from Gen. H. H. (Hap) Arnold, wartime chief of the Air Force, and from aircraft manufacturers. Arnold is ill. The full committee will resume hearings here August 22, unless the House takes a recess.

The late afternoon row overshadowed earlier testimony by Symington and Gen. Hoyt. S. Vandenberg in which:

(1) The Air Force Secretary announced that the B-36 already has flown "a good deal farther" than its contract requirement of 10,000 miles without refueling and carrying a 10,000-pound bomb.

(2) Vandenberg declared that American possession of "significant" quantities of A-bombs, plus the means to deliver them, provides the major check on the "aggressive designs" of Soviet leaders.

He added that the "one major military threat to the security of the United States and the peace of the world . . . comes rom the Soviet Union." Later he said his remarks on this point had been cleared with the State Department.

Both Vandenberg and Symington categorically denied all of the accusations and innuendos contained in Van Zandt's speech and the anonymous document.

In both their prepared statements and under detailed questioning under oath they termed suggestions of political influence affecting Air Force decisions on the B-36 as "fantastic" and "unthinkable." There never was any hint of such being attempted, both officials declared.

Under questioning by Van Zandt, Symington replied in far different manner than his answers to other members. He gave "yeahs" and "naws" instead of the usual formal "yes, sir" and "no, sir." Once when the Congressman asked him about bombing targets and ranges, he told him to "get a map and figure it out for yourself."

The two had tangled repeatedly during the afternoon-long hearing. Symington previously had demanded that the "cowards" behind the anonymous document "stand up and be counted."

The document accused the Atlas Corp., headed by Floyd Odlum, of trying to "take over the National Military Establishment." Odlum, chairman of Consolidated-Vultee, makers of the B-36, was said to have made heavy contributions to President Truman's 1948 campaign on Defense Secretary Louis Johnson's instance.

It was suggested that the Air Force's decision to expand rather than curtail B-36 orders last year was due to "political influence" rather than the merits of the bomber. Symington, according to the Van Zandt speech and the anonymous document, was to quit after getting B-36 orders enlarged and head a vast aircraft combine owned by Odlum.

This latter was the statement credited by Van Zandt to "sources he could not ignore" and which Vinson yesterday demanded that he identify.

Questioned by Chairman Vinson on this point, Chief Counsel Joseph Keenan said he had been unable to get any evidence on this point—including the data turned over to him by Van Zandt.

Earlier, Symington had told the committee he knew who had prepared the much-mentioned anonymous document. He said that the "cowardly accusers" consisted of a "series of individuals organized into a group" and added that he had turned over the names to the committee.

Representative Melvin Price (D., Ill.) demanded that he name them, but Keenan objected strenuously. He said he wouldn't be associated with an investigation that put out "semi-proofs" and "half-baked slander."

Ruling out the question, Vinson said the committee would "find out who did it and put him on the stand." Later he said when this was done, he was going to print the document and Van Zandt's speech in parallel columns.

"Are you insinuating that I am the author of that document?" demanded the Pennsylvanian.

"Not at all," Vinson replied smoothly, "It's just a funny coincidence how your speech so dovetails in with it."

Symington also said that a high Navy official—apparently Undersecretary Dan Kimball—had apologized to him for a letter he had written to Van Zandt saying Navy fighters could shoot down the B-36. The naval official, said Symington, declared the letter had been "cooked up" for him to sign by someone at the Navy.

The Air Force Secretary also protested against "leaks" about B-36 performance—most of them "distorted." He declared they came after the date had been furnished to other offices in the Pentagon outside the Air Force.

Under questioning, Vandenberg declared he considered the B-36 both a day and night bomber—disagreeing with Gen. George C. Kenney. Quizzed about his knowledge of aircraft carriers, he said he'd never been aboard one at sea.

Arms Aid Hopes Rise

review the program. While the arms plan is technically a one-year program, deliveries would be spread over two years.

Kee announced that his committee unanimously adopted several changes in the bill's language.

One was an amendment by Representative Javits (R., N. Y.) requiring that all aid to Western European members of the Atlantic Treaty should "further the development of unified defense plans" of the yet-to-be-established treaty council and defense committee, "with provision for unified direction and effort."

This was a compromise to calls for a "unified command" to handle the aid. While the effect of the amendment still was being studied by the State Department yesterday, it apparently would have the President decide if the aid supplied will accomplish this purpose.

Declaration Modified

The House committee modified the bill's declaration of policy, striking out direct reference to the so-called Vandenberg resolution adopted by the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress, which had been pointedly identified.

Added to the declaration was the following, in substantially the same language as part of the Vandenberg resolution:

"The Congress reaffirms the policy of the United States to seek agreements to provide the United Nations with armed forces as contemplated in the (U. N.) Charter and agreements to achieve universal control of weapons of mass destruction and universal regulation and reduction of armaments, including armed forces, under adequate safeguards to protect complying nations against violence and invasion."

In the Senate committee vote inviting General MacArthur and Admiral Badger to testify, two Democrats, Byrd of Virginia and Russell of Georgia, joined 11 Republicans in the move sponsored by Senator Knowland (R., Calif.).

Other Spporters Listed

Besides Knowland, the Republicans were Vandenberg (Mich.), Wiley (Wis.), Smith (N. J.), Hickenlooper (Iowa), Lodge (Mass.), Bridges (N. H.), Gurney (S. Dak.), Saltonstall (Mass.), Morse (Oreg.), and Baldwin (Conn.).

Referring to the recent State Department White Paper which said further arms aid to Nationalist China could not affect the outcome of the civil war there, Knowland said:

"This shows a majority of the committee does not want to be solely limited to being spoon-fed by White Papers or witnesses solely brought up by the Government."

Insures Car, Collects Without Leaving Chair

Pompano Beach, Fla., Aug. 12 (AP).—Samuel Backinger visited an insurance company to see about insuring his car.

The deal was closed yesterday. Backinger made out a check for the first premium payment.

As he wrote the check, a brisk wind blew a sign off the insurance company's building. It slammed into Backinger's car.

Backinger filled out a claim for damages without leaving his chair.

Strength in Union, Churchill Argues

Strasbourg, France, Aug. 12 (AP).—Winston Churchill told the townspeople of this war-scarred old city tonight that Europe must unite in strength so great "that none will dare molest her tranquil sway."

Such a united Europe would be based on moral convictions that would win the gratitude of all mankind, he told an outdoor rally of the European movement, which he heads.

The wartime Prime Minister of Britain made his current keynote speech on European union to the people after he had spent two days wrangling in the first consultative assembly of the European Council for the assemhly's right to parliamentary freedom.

He spoke in French to the rally of about 1000 Alsatians and at one point asked: "Are we to sink . . . into final chaos through ideological wars thrust upon us by barbarous and wicked oligarchies . . .?"

Reds Rally Nearby

Police guarded canal bridges between Churchill's rally and a Communist protest gathering half a mile away. Communists first urged their ranks to attend the Churchill rally but changed their minds and met separately. There was no violence.

"We shall protect ourselves against being crushed and flattened out by any form of totalitarian tyranny, whether it be the hated Nazi domination which we have cast out, or by any other form or similar despotism," Churchill told the rally.

He did not mention communism or Russia.

"I myself am not the emeny of any race or nation in the world," he said. This statement was cheered by the crowd.

"Old feuds must die," Churchill said, "territorial ambitions must be set aside, national rivalries must be confined to proving who can render the truest service to the common cause."

Wins Half-Victory

In the assembly earlier, Churchill won a half-victory in the effort to break away from restrictions on what it can talk about. For the second straight day he championed the cause of parliamentary freedom for the 101-man, 12-nation body.

He and other assemblymen acted to liberalize the rules under which the European Council's Committee of (Foreign) Ministers would have considerable power to decide what goes on the assembly's agenda.

Assembly President Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium met with the Ministers' Committee two hours and brought back an agreement allowing a two-thirds majority of the assembly to propose new topics for debate at any time during asembly sessions. The ministers agreed to receive agenda suggestions from Spaak and reply to the assembly within five days.

The assembly spent all of today's session protesting the Foreign Ministers' powers over it. The upshot was the compromise which allows the assembly to define its own agenda for this year's session and promises it more latitude generally.

Greeks Report Reds Fleeing Into Albania

Kozane, Greece, Aug. 12 (AP).—Communist guerilla bands were believed fleeing into Albania tonight after the American-trained Greek army had ripped into the heart of their Vitsi Mountain stronghold in 48 hours of heavy fighting.

Government troops, smashing through the main guerilla defenses from the east and south, pushed forward into the core of the enemy's 400-square-mile Vitsi triangle fortress.

Goal of the current push—coupled with the offensive farther north in the Mount Grammos area—is to blast out two key Communist strongholds along the Albanian border.

Greek officers believed they might overrun the vital juncture of the guerillas' Albanian supply route with the Florina-Kastoria highway. This road has been kept closed by guerilla defenders for more than a year.

Competent military observers said they believed if the Greek troops can hold up under anticipated counterattacks, they should be able to wipe out some 8000 guerillas in the Vitsi triangle alone.

Government intelligence officers said the guerilla high command had issued orders for every man to die fighting. One senior officer said in some positions the guerillas had obbeyed and died to a man.

U. S. Attache's Car Wrecked By Bomb in Prague Street

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 12 (AP).—An American Embassy official here reported that a homemade bomb wrecked his automobile early today.

Capt. Childs

Capt. John Childs, assistant air attache, said the car, unoccupied, was parked in front of his house at the time of the explosion. Nobody was injured but windows of nearby buildings were shattered.

The car's radiator and front parts were blown apart.

"I have no theories about who might have planted it, nor do the police," Childs said.

[She said she first learned of the incident from newspapers yesterday. Her son, who is 25 and single, has been in the Air Force for seven years, she said. During the war, he served as an insructor in this country and was sent to Germany after the war. He has been assistant air attache at the American Embassy in Prague since March.—Editor's note.]

Acheson Vows Firm Policy On Hongkong

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Chinese Communist aggression against the British Crown Colony of Hongkong would call for immediate United States action in the United Nations, Secretary of State Acheson indicated yesterday.

Replying to a question at his news conference, Acheson said this country already had held various discussions with the British on the question. But he said the matter was a difficult one, depending on what happened, so the United States would know what it was backing up.

Bevin Due Here

Acheson said emphatically, however, any action violating provisions of the U. N. Charter would immediately call for action in the Security Council. The United States, he continued, would support in charter obligations fully.

In answer to further questions on the delicate situation in China, Acheson said the matter might very well be discussed at length when British Foreign Secretary Bevin comes here next month.

The fundamental reason for the conferences bringing Bevin here is to work out a means of meeting Britain's economic crisis.

On policy toward China in general, the secretary said he and Ambassador John Leighton Stuart, who returned from China Wednesday, would embark on full discussions looking toward a new Chinese policy next week.

Hongkong Reinforced

Acheson's statements on Hongkong were in line with general policy as outlined in the State Department's White Paper on China. In that document he told President Truman this Government should rely on the U. N. in event of actual or threatened aggression by Chinese Communists against bordering states.

Fearing their momentum might carry the Communist armies southward beyond the borders of former Nationalist China, the British already have reinforced their defenses at Hongkong. The island fortress, just off the Chinese coast in the South China Sea, was taken easily by the Japanese early in 1942.

Kanhsien Fall Reported, But Not Confirmed

Canton, Aug. 12 (AP).—Heavy fighting 215 miles northeast of Canton and continuing Red gains in Mohammedan Northwest China marked the civil war today.

Rumors that Kanhsien had fallen could not be confirmed, but pro-government dispatches said the Reds were fighting on the outskirts of that Kiangsi provincial capital 215 miles from Canton.

The Communists also were reported applying strong pressure 35 miles north of Hengyang on the railway leading to Canton. Military analysts speculated the Communists had no intention of attacking that strong fortress frontally, but aimed at squeezing Nationalist Gen. Pai Ching-hsi into withdrawing.

Official Nationalist reports stated the Communists were preparing an amphibious assault on the Chushan Islands, 115 miles southeast of Shanghai.

The nearest of these islands is only 7 miles off the mainland. They include important Nationalist air and naval bases. (It is from them that the Nationalists have been maintaining their blockade of Shanghai and making frequent air raids.)

Pacific Dive To Be Tried By Scientist

Santa Cruz Island, Calif., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—A 48-year-old scientist from Boston was poised tonight for what may be man's first journey to a point more than a mile beneath the surface of the ocean.

Otis Barton, veteran undersea explorer will go down 6000 feet—twice as deep as anyone ever has gone before—if two test dives with his round steel benthoscope are successful.

The first two dives with the sturdy, 5-foot ball, which Barton designed, will be made with only cameras and sound equipment aboard.

If all goes well, Barton will crawl through a 15-inch hole in the side of the benthoscope and drop into the depths of the Santa Cruz Basin.

A small flotilla of surface craft set sail from San Pedro, Calif., early today to rendezvous off Santa Cruz Island for the hazardous plunge under the ocean.

The ball is 57½ inches in diameter, 3½ inches larger than the bathysphere which Barton also designed and in which he and William Beebe went down 3028 feet in 1934 off Bermuda. Two men can sit or kneel inside, supplying themselves with oxygen from tanks fastened to the sphere and communicating with the surface by telephone.

Following the present experiment, the benthoscope is to be used for explorations of a shelf off the California coast about 1000 feet under water. The shelf is relatively level, and the benthoscope is equipped with big wooden wheels so it can be pulled along the ocean bottom.

Strike Talked In Britain's Mines, Rails

London, Aug. 12 (AP).—Fresh strike talk developed in Britain's coal mines and railroads today.

Mine elevator operators snubbed a government attempt to head off a strike which would shut down all nationalized mines in England and Scotland next Friday.

Railway workers threatened to renew Sunday-only token strikes which paralyzed holiday trips from London to the northeast for four weekends in May and June. They don't like schedules which keep them away from home overnight.

The coal strike threat came from the Colliery Winders' Federation, whose leaders refused a Government offer to refer to arbitration their wage dispute with the National Coal Board.

Renewal of the Sunday railway stoppages was voted by 240 engineers and firemen of the Grantham depot of the London and Northeastern Railroad. It was to go into effect at midnight Saturday.

The men said the decision protested suspension of two of their fellows for refusing to work a shift which kept them from home at night. The Railway Executive denied the two had been suspended.

Ex-POWs Rout Meetings of German Reds

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 12 (AP).—Former German prisoners of war in Russia broke up Communist political rallies in two cities today as western Germany's election campaign swept toward a climax. The election for the new parliament will be hed Sunday.

Shouting "We are fed up with Russians," recently returned prisoners charged into a Communist meeting at Bentheim on the Dutch-German border and chased the speaker from the platform.

One of the former prisoners then addressed the crowd, saying, "In our presence no one will support Soviet sub-humanity."

In the British zone city of Guetersloh, former prisoners heckled a Communist speaker, demanding that he describe conditions in the Soviet zone. Police dispersed the meeting.

Max Reimann, Number One Communist in west Germany, demanded in another campaign speech that the Germans be "let alone to build up" their own homeland.

"We have lost two wars but we are still here," he shouted.

West Berlin Will Get Aid, McCloy Says

By The Associated Press

John J. McCloy, United States high commissioner for Germany, yesterday said the Administration has decided that western Berlin is eligible to receive Marshall Plan aid.

McCloy told a news conference his 10-day visit here has clarified this point and that he hopes to announce a grant to the western sectors of Berlin soon.

Berlin is not officially included as part of western Germany and until now has never received Marshall Plan assistance despite urgent appeal from West German political leaders.

McCloy said the United States will do all it can to assist western Berlin. But, he emphasized, this does not mean the American Government alone will assume the burden of meeting the city's deficit.

McCloy left the conference to board a plane for a return flight to Germany. He wants to be back for the West German elections Sunday.

Soviets Reduce Berlin Traffic for 8 Hours

Berlin, Aug. 12 (AP).—Russian army guards cut down west German truck traffic to Berlin for eight hours early today, United States military sources reported.

Passage through the Soviet checkpoint at Helmstedt, frontier post on the main road from the British zone, was cut down at 2 a. m. to four trucks an hour. Eight hours later the slowdown order was lifted.

A British military spokesman said the slowdown began because Russian guards "didn't like the look" of passes carried by German truckers from the American zone. They slowed down traffic until higher Soviet headquarters approved the questioned passes, the spokesman said.

Plot to Kill Tito With Mine Is Reported

Trieste, Free Territory, Aug. 12 (AP).—Astra, an Italian news agency, today said a group of pro-Cominform Communists had plotted unsuccessfuly to assassinate Yugoslav Premier Marshal Tito with a Russian-type mine July 29.

Quoting travelers to Trieste, Astra said traitors in the group betrayed the plot and Tito's police arrested 30 suspects, including several soldiers.

The travelers were quoted as having said the plot was carefully planned over a long period by anti-Tito members of a "proletariat" sporting club at Pola, Yugoslavia, on the Adriatic.

A mine was placed at the entrance of a Pola shipbuilding yard that Tito was to visit the afternoon of July 29, according to the travelers. Pola, a seaport awarded to Yugoslavia under the Italian peace treaty, is some 60 miles south of Trieste.

U. S. Reported Warned Reds Seek Tito's Life

London (Saturday), Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Under the headline, "U. S. Fears Stalin Coup," the Daily Mail today said American military intelligence had warned President Truman Russia may try to liquidate Marshal Tito and his regime in the next eight weeks.

The dispatch from the paper's Washington correspondent, Ralph Izzard, said agents and troops in disguise were infiltrating into Yugoslavia in order to encourage an internal revolt against Tito.

Java War Continues

Batavia, Java, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Fighting continued throughout Java today despite Wednesday's cease-fire order, and it was reported Netherlands and Indonesian military commanders would meet Saturday to try to solve the problem.

Dutch headquarters in Soerabaya today ordered a new curfew as a result of the number of guerillas infiltrating into the city following the cease-fire order.

Reliable sources said more than 200 well-armed Indonesians infiltrated Soerabaya simultaneous with issuance of the cease-fire order but the situation there was described as "perfectly peaceful."

Reports from central Java said sporadic fighting continued around Soerakarta where the Indonesians attacked Sunday. Local press dispatches said the area was "unsettled."

Dutch authorities announced guerillas attacked a rubber estate 65 miles south of Batavia, killing the Dutch administrator and wounding three estate guards.

Son of Wellington Koo To Marry on Aug. 20

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Tehchang Koo, 33-year-old son of Wellington Koo, Chinese Ambassador to the United States, and Miss Gertrude Yang, 21, today obtained a marriage license.

Koo, who described himself as a businessman, said he was born in Washington, D. C.

Miss Yang, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ho-ching Yang, was born in Shanghai. She is a graduate of Bennington (Vt.) College.

Pulled Tooth Makes Gorilla Suffer, Too

Chicago, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—Sinbad the Gorilla had a tooth pulled today and suffered just like anybody else.

The 38-pound baby gorilla squawked loud and long when three dentists, the Lincoln Park Zoo veterinarian and three Zoo attendants plunked him down on a special operating table. A local anesthetic quieted him.

Sinbad yelled again after the ordeal was over. Later he sat in his cage and worried the hole in his gum with his tongue.

Angela Lansbury Wed To Set Designer

London, Aug. 12 (AP).—Blue-eyed, blonde Angela Lansbury, London-born Hollywood actress, and movie set designed Peter Shaw were married today but not in her old Cockney neighborhood as she wanted to.

Because both had been devorced they were refused permission to be wed in the Anglican Bow Street Church. They took their vows instead in the Scottish Presbyterian Church in Chelsea.

Swarms of Starlings Give Big Ben the Bird

London, Aug. 12 (AP).—Big Ben, famed London clock atop the Parliament Building, failed to ring at 9 tonight.

Listeners to the British Broadcasting Co.'s 9 o'clock news were startled to hear the news begin without the familiar Big Ben chimes.

The BBC later announced Big Ben was running four minutes slow—"swarms of starlings are sitting on the hands holding them back."

Middle East To Get Arms

London, Aug 12 (AP).—The British said today they are resuming sales of arms to Arab nations with a view to security and strategic needs in the Middle East.

The announcement came a day after the United Nations lifted the arms embargo imposed during the Arab-Israeli war in Palestine.

The first shipments will deliver material contracted for before the embargo went into effect, the Foreign Office said.

Among the countries on the list are Egypt, Hashemite Jordan and Iraq, all of which have mutual defense treaties with Britain. A spokesman said he could not name the countries to be supplied.

Jordan's King Abdullah will visit Britain soon as a guest of the British Government. He is expected to discuss defense planning.

munist lieutenants were ousted from the Cominform—Russia's network of eastern European satellites—for alleged deviations from the Marxist-Leninist line.

(In London, diplomatic observers wondered whether this latest outbreak of name-calling might be a forerunner of a sharper Russian policy against Yugoslavia.

(Tito alerted his troops in Yugoslav Macedonia last week—between Communist Bulgaria and Albania—and charged his Soviet-dominated neighbors were spreading rumors of a possible Red army invasion there.)

Charges in Note

Dealing with the status of Russian-Yugoslav relations, the new Soviet note said:

"The Yugoslav government more and more is joining up with the imperialist circles (the West) against the U.S.S.R. and is in a bloc with them.

"That certain strong ties bind the Yugoslav government or chief persons in the Yugoslav government with the camp of foreign capitalists.

"That the Soviet government can no longer consider the Yugoslav government as an ally.

"That the Soviet government can no longer support claims of the Yugoslav government, especially those claims which the Yugoslav government has renounced, although it hides it from the Yugoslav people.

"That if the Yugoslav government prefers a united front with the imperialists to a united front with the U.S.S.R., then let these circles (the imperialists) support its claims."

Moscow published a letter from Edward Kardelj, Yugoslav Foreign Minister, dated April 20, 1947, in which he offered variations on the minimum Yugoslav demands on Austria. In effect, it reduced Yugoslavia's claims to a small strip of territory containing two electric power stations.

Russia charged in its note Yugoslavia was afraid to bear the responsibility for sacrificing national interests and wanted to have the Soviet Union play that role.

Yugoslavia to End Joint Shipping Corporation

Belgrade, Aug. 12 (AP).—Yugoslavia announced today she will liquidate the jointly financed Russian-Yugoslav Yuspad Corp., which had been set up for the control and development of mutual shipping interests.

Transport Minister Bozidar Maslaric said Yuspad, a coined name for the Yugoslav-Soviet Joint Danube Navigation Co., is harmful to the Yugoslav people. It was the existence of such companies under Yugoslav control that kept the Western powers from signing a Danube River agreement drafted here a year ago under the guidance of Andrei Y. Vishinsky, now Soviet foreign minister.

The workers were told that in the future they will be under the administration of the Transport Ministry and "Yuspad will not appear any more to slow down your creative powers."

Maslaric charged Yuspad had been used by Russia to milk Yugoslavia of profits and rob workers of the fruit of their labors.

Injured in Safety Lane

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 12 (AP).—Bessie Bostick believes safety engineers should be more careful where they draw the line. Miss Bostick, 24, was hospitalized today with a leg injury suffered when she slipped on a freshly painted pedestrian safety lane.

Way To Investigate

"Hold it!" cried Counsel William P. Rogers when Senator McCarthy drew from Albert J. Gross the name of Major General Vaughan, the President's military aide, as the recipient of one of the deep-freeze units said to have been distributed among Washington officialdom. The investigation was getting out of hand. Apparently Mr. Gross was ready to reel off other names on the "deep-freeze" list without having given the investigating committee's experts a chance to look into the facts. The result might have been to smear numerous innocent individuals by the disclosure of half-truths or facts pointing to misleading conclusions.

In a huddle that followed, members of the committee and Mr. Rogers agreed that further disclosure of names would be withheld pending an investigation to show who paid for the freezing units. Considering the record of the committee, which is the successor to the Truman Committee, we have no doubt that all the facts will be spread on the record in due time. Meanwhile possible injustice has been avoided, except in the case of General Vaughan. The incident reflects a high standard of investigating technique. It indicates that Mr. Rogers is on the alert to protect the reputations of citizens from possibly unsupported charges or implications as well as to bring all the well-founded facts to light. He is entitled to high commendation though his reticence has unfortunately been offset to a certain extent by what are apparently senatorial leaks. The incident suggests the desirability of Senators passing along to the committee counsel the information they intend to elicit so that a more thorough picture of the alleged misconduct can be developed before the testimony is taken.

Britain And China

Two looming crises which are hanging over all foreign policy decisions in Washington stem from Britain and China. And they have the same common denominator—the pressure of population upon the means of subsistence. In China, from time immemorial, the rulers have always accepted the fact of chronic overpopulation, and have acquiesced fatalistically, even philosophically, in periodical purges from flood and famine, pestilence and massacre. In Britain there is not the same recognition, because overpopulation is a recent phenomenon there, having been produced by the collapse of a world economy of which Britain used to be the kingpin. Two things sustained the population in comfort: their foreign investments and their foreign trade in manufactures and services. However, the investments for the most part were liquidated in order to pay for warmaking, and in trade the British are not able to maintain their position competitively.

The two problems not only have a common denominator; they merge in a curious way in the concern of American policy-makers. Britain, fighting desperately to sustain her population, is struggling to keep and expand markets, and the market in China, actual and potential, seems almost a necessity in her extremity. She clings to the hope that trade can be continued even with a Communist China. For that reason she has swallowed and will swallow almost any indignity in order to stay in business. Moreover, she knows that without trade Hongkong, the gateway of trade with South China, would atrophy, and perhaps revert to the barren rock on which the British have erected a great and prosperous colony. The United States is under no such compunction, though Japan, which has a brisk trade with the Chinese, must be considered in any American measures toward China. Nevertheless we can afford to take a longer view than the British.

However, without British cooperation, any American policy toward Communist China aimed at provoking some reasonableness on the part of the Communist leaders is likely to boomerang. This is a dilemma for the policy-makers in the State Department. Unless the British go along with the United States, the Chinese Communists will continue to hold the whip hand, playing off one foreign power against the other in time-honored fashion. In other words, the diplomatic unity in the Far East so essential in handling the Chinese Communists may be impossible to attain, in the final analysis, because of British overpopulation.

What the answer is to those two problems which are weighing upon our policy-makers is infinitely difficult to apprehend, let alone propound. Interventionism, of course, might aid nature in the weeding-out process of Chinese overpopulation, but it might be, eventually, at the expense of the American security, even the American integrity. The Chinese, after all, managed to squeeze the Spartanism out of the Japanese within half a dozen years of their stay in China. As for Britain, the time is coming, if it has not already come, when the British will have to recognize the new facts of their life, and accommodate themselves to those facts. Maybe, then, they will take a lead in joining their neighbors, or looking to union with like-minded people elsewhere. Along that route is the only way to relieve the United States of a diplomatic as well as an economic burden.

Morals vs. Friendship

President Truman tried to avoid saying anything about Major General Vaughan, his military aide, on Thursday after a witness had testified that a deep-freeze unit had been shipped to the general and paid for by a Chicago perfume manufacturer. To the first questions asked the President replied that he had no comment. The men of the press were not satisfied. Their continued questions goaded the President into a very indiscreet defense of his aide, although he had previously admitted that he does not know the facts that the Senate Investigating Committee is seeking. The effect is to put the President in the position of condoning conduct that may prove to have been highly improper and of being indifferent toward possible scandal in his own official family.

We do not suppose that the President would have made such a statement deliberately. But his repartee with the press on a question of this sort is likely to carry further than any official statement he could make. No doubt the President spoke with only one thought—loyalty to his friend. That is an admirable quality, but even loyalty to a friend does not demand of the President of the United States that he turn his back upon evidence of special favors passing between Government officials and private interests. If the use of special influence to divert building materials from veterans' housing to a race track (to say nothing of the "deep-freeze" incident, which is still under investigation) does not change the President's opinion of General Vaughan, other Government officials will certainly be encouraged to indulge in it. The result may be a moral letdown of serious proportions.

The President's latest comment is of a piece with his reported decoration of General Vaughan for his "gallantry" in "Operation Union Station." When reporters questioned the bumbling general at Union Station, he is said to have admitted that he knew a lot of 5-per-centers, but also to have cursed and threatened his interrogators. In the White House that may sound funny, and no one will begrudge the President his little pranks or the services of a court jester. But we suggest Mr. Truman would do well to remember that the tragedy which befell the Harding Administration had its roots in a President's friendships that were betrayed. Indeed, friendships that ignore the moral responsibility of one friend toward another are likely to prove only traps for the unwary.

Good Conduct Abroad

American Air Force men in England—there are now some 8000 of them—face a task in some respects far more perilous and difficult than that which confronted their wartime compatriots and predecessors. It was one thing to deal with Messerschmidts and ack-ack and buzz bombs; the Air Force trains its men for that sort of job. But it's something else again to be visitors on a tight—and now rather austere—little isle in time of peace. The members of the American Air Force in England are now ambassadors—there's no getting away from it—and their influence on the cordiality of Anglo-American relations undoubtedly far exceeds that of Mr. Lewis Douglas.

It is greatly to the credit of the airmen in England that they have recognized this responsibility and have faced it without flinching, awesome as it must seem. They have devised a voluntary code of good conduct, the theme of which is reported to be "Don't let's be beastly to the British." Its terms themselves make clear enough the delicacy and difficulty of their position. They have voluntarily forbidden themselves to be overtalkative and familiar or to gripe about ration and currency regulations or even to protest about the non-American size of food portions. They have resolved to keep out of black markets, to avoid lavish tipping and to be sporting enough to take the consequences if they go in for clip joints. They have promised neither to boast about America nor to apologize for it.

The whole of this code was hammered out by the enlisted men themselves in one of their weekly discussion hours. Verily, peace hath its heroes no less than war.

Air Mail And Subsidies

American commercial airlines have been receiving, from the Government the generous subsidies warranted by the importance of their development to the national economy and defense in the form of large payments for carrying the mail. The result is that neither the public, nor even the Post-office Department which foots the bill, can estimate the amount of subsidy involved. The degree to which the subsidy is disguised can be gauged from an observation made some time ago by Chairman O'Connell of the Civil Aeronautics Board in the course of a speech to the New York Bar Association. "I cannot tell you," he said, "whether the subsidy element represents 30, 40, 50 or 60 million dollars."

The chairman of the CAB really ought to be able to tell within rather narrower limits than this. There is a bill introduced by Senator Johnson of Colorado last March, now awaiting a report by the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, which would make it easy for the chairman of the CAB to tell exactly how much is paid the air carriers for actually carrying the mail and how much is paid to assist them over their financial difficulties. This would neither do away with nor even necessarily diminish the amount of subsidies. It would merely apply a sensible accounting system, allocating air mail payments on the basis of actual costs of operation and subsidies on the basis of financial need. The Postmaster General and a number of prominent airline officials have indorsed the measure.

Unfortunately, Senator Johnson subsequently introduced a substitute measure which would do no more than authorize and direct the CAB to investigate and report upon the payments made to air carriers. It seems to us that this would entail a wholly needless delay in instituting a reform long overdue. The need is not so much to study as promptly to correct a situation in which a Government agency confessedly does not know and cannot know what it is doing with public funds. The public is entitled to a kind of accounting which will enable it to evaluate the character and extent of the outright grants it is making to foster commercial aviation.

Two-Man Mule

Senator Lucas' appearance before the Republican policy committee Wednesday is the ultimate measure of his lack of real control over the Democratic majority—control such as would permit the disciplining of even a recalcitrant non-Dixiecrat like Senator McCarran. The Republicans will have the support of Democratic leadership, Senator Lucas told them, in prying displaced persons legislation out from under the inert McCarran.

Revision of the present DP Act, as Senator Lucas said, is not a party issue but a humanitarian necessity. The sponsors of liberalizing amendments in this session are of both parties. The chief bills bear the names of Democrats, of course, but the chief obstacle bears the same party label, the mule. It is particularly appropriate here, because Senator McCarran has stubbornly refused to budge in his opposition to DP amendments.

His immobility on this particular matter is also expressed in his disinclination to move the Judd bill out of the Judiciary Committee, where it is logjammed behind the better-publicized DP issue. The Judd bill to remove racial discriminations still remaining in United States immigration and naturalizaton laws is not just a humanitarian gesture. It could be a weapon of immense value in proving to Asian peoples that America means what it says about equality. The State Department considers it of great importance for the furtherance of self-interested diplomacy in the Far East.

Here the Senator from Nevada is not quite so adamant. But he is only the forepart of a two-man mule in the Judiciary Committee setup. The real kicker is not a Senator at all, but a paid employe of the Senate, the nominally impartial chief of the committee's staff on immigration problems, Richard Arens. Few elected members of the upper chamber wield the influence he seems to in determining whether legislation which the House has approved but which he does not approve shall come before the Senate.

We welcome Senator Lucas' announcement that there will be action on the DP matter before the end of this session, whether Senator McCarran likes it or not. Senator Lucas might also look into the possibility of a bipartisan petition to get the Judd bill out of Mr. Arens' deathgrip. It could be addressed to Senator McCarran, who ought to have some influence and who is not wholly insensible or indifferent, as Arens seems to be, to the fact that the United States is waging a desperate battle for the good will of millions of Asians.

Friends In Need

In the early days of December eight years ago an almost mortal disaster struck the United States. It happened to have been made in Japan rather than in the mysterious depths of the earth, like the disaster that has hit Ecuador. The Ecuadorian response was both instantaneous and uncalculating.

The smoke was still rising over Pearl Harbor when the Ecuadorian government pledged its solidarity with the United States and inquired what it could do to be of assistance. On request from Washington and without compensation, Ecuador ceded two bases for the defense of the Panama Canal, one in the Galapagos Islands and one at Salinas on the mainland.

When the Japanese cut off normal supplies of rubber from Malaya and the Dutch East Indies, Ecuador sold all its output to us at a price which was half of what Argentina was willing to pay. It increased its output of balsa wood and supplied most of the United States needs of that war-important commodity, the demand for which it knew would drop at the end of the war.

These and other contributions Ecuador made to the common cause. A chance to requite the debt in some small measure has now come. Ecuador is not a rich land and the disaster of earthquake has hit it hard. A spontaneous outpouring of help from Americans, and particularly from Washingtonians, is due. We call your attention to the fact that contributions of money or clothing and other needed articles will be welcomed at the Ecuadorian Embassy.

Health Agency

My testimony, presented on July 22, 1949, to the Senate Committee on Expenditures in the Executive departments, reveals why Reorganization Plan No. 1 is a highly dangerous proposal, and contrary to the public welfare.

As you know, Plan No. 1 proposed to establish the Federal Security Agency as a department of welfare with a secretary having Cabinet status. The new department would control the Nation's health, education and social security activities.

It is the profound belief of this association that the health of the Nation is far too important to be submerged in an ever-expanding welfare and social assistance program.

The nonpartisan Hoover Commission (Task Force Report—Supplement to Appendix O) supports this contention: "The health agency, if submerged within a multipurpose department, would be more likely to find its health functions impeded by collateral considerations pertaining to welfare and insurance."

We believe there is another grave implication in Plan No. 1: The proposal would confer far larger powers on the proposed secretary than are now enjoyed by the Administrator of the Federal Security Agency. The prospect of such expanding power in the hands of one person is alarming. In fact, he would be provided with a budget second only to the Department of Defense, and this would give him a potential second only to that of the President.

The Hoover Commission strongly recommends the creation of a united medical service as an independent agency reporting to the President, instead of as a bureau of a department of health, education and security. Thus, Reorganization Plan No. 1 is in direct conflict with the stated recommendations of the nonpartisan Hoover Commission.

The Hoover Commission concluded: "We have reached the conclusion that such an independent organization (independent medical agency) would be preferable to placing this function in a larger department (Department of Welfare), as the Commission originally proposed."

"Fourth Round"

After criticizing the steel workers demands for a fourth round wage increase, you state: in your August 5 editorial, Fourth Round: "To be sure, with higher wages, steel workers will have more money to spend and their buying will help to sustain business activity. However, a much greater stimulus to buying would result from lower prices for steel and the many products whose prices are affected by the price of steel."

The steel workers would prefer the same course. It was the steel barons, not the steel workers who dictated otherwise. For two years during which the steel companies had fixed labor costs under terms of their 1947 agreement with the United Steelworkers, CIO, profits rose higher and higher, reaching an all-time high in the first half of this year—without a substantial reduction in the price of steel products.

One of the reasons the market for steel products is now falling off is that steel companies failed to reduce prices—in effect they priced themselves out of the market. With a reduction in prices and a consequent rise in the demand for steel products, there is no reason to doubt that there can be a generous raise in wages to steel workers and at the same time the maintenance of fair profits to the steel companies.

If the steel companies choose to pass along wage increases to the consumer in the form of higher prices, it can scarcely be said to be the fault of the steel workers. While real wages have actually decreased for the steel worker during the last two years, profits have risen enormously. The steel worker needs higher real wages and more security—to that nearly everyone is agreed. He could have got them if the steel barons had decided to pursue a responsible policy by cutting the prices of steel products substantially. The barons chose to do otherwise, thus the steel workers were left with no choice but to demand higher wages.

"Word To The Churches"

I want to thank you for your editorial of July 26, "Word To The Churches," and which was reproduced in the Congressional Record of August 4.

Self respect prompts me as a Baptist to conclude that if my denomination chooses to spread its own beliefs on its own people a little thicker and decides not to accept public instruction, we'll pay the difference and run our own schools. I hope my denomination will always be willing to be fair with any governmental agency. I could wish we were even willing to pay land taxes and unemployment compensation taxes as well as to decline to accept exemption from sales or any other tax which an individual is called upon to pay.

"Never Say Dead"

In your August 4 editorial, "Never Say Dead," you said, "The Barden bill sticks by the separation of church and state principle, but it is a principle long since torn in shreds by reason of many direct and indirect forms of governmental subsidy to religion."

As a proof of the alleged decrepitude of "separation," the writer cites the support of the chaplains—a long-suffering whipping-boy for those who would discredit "separation." The companion-piece to the chaplain-sectarianism taunts, though not specifically used in the editorial, is the allegation that the espousal of strict "separation is a recently developed anti-Catholic distortion of the intent of our founders.

Jefferson and Madison, who were chiefly responsible for "separation" into our Constitution were aware that, in general, members of religious groups tended to be fanatically devoted to certain dogmatic principles, and, in consequence, strongly intolerant of differing opinions. Since, among the churches which had enjoyed political ties with various of the American colonies, there had been no Catholic "establishment;" and, since Jefferson's personal efforts had brought about the "disestablishment" of his own (Anglican) church in Virginia, there is little ground for assuming that "separation" was directed primarily against catholicism. As for their attitude toward strictness in "separation" and toward the chaplaincy in particular, let us consider the following excerpts from Essay on Ecclesiastical Trusts by the author of the first amendment, James Madison:

"Is the appointment of chaplains to the two Houses of Congress consistent with the Constitution, and with the pure principle of religious freedom?

"In strictness the answer on both points must be in the negative. The Constitution of the United States forbids everything like an establishment of a national religion: The law appointing chaplains establishes a religious worship for the national representatives, to be performed by ministers of religion, elected by a majority of them; and these are to be paid out of the national taxes.

"The establishment of the chaplainship to Congress is a palpable violation of equal rights as well as of constitutional principles . . ."

I believe we may now dismiss the charge of distorted intent.

As for that of "sectarianism," it should be obvious that those who, at the moment, are bent upon its destruction—and there is little doubt that catholicism is today's foremost threat to "separation."

As to condoning the chaplaincy—the charge must stick. Although there is a strong Protestant minority—individual, denominational, and journalistic—which recognizes the true situation and deplores the equivocation of their fellows, Protestantism, which comprises the sinews of present-day separationism, has refused to face the issue squarely: and until it does, all its efforts toward "separation" will be compromised. Though the problem is difficult, there is ample ground to state that, given the sincere efforts of the churches and the military authorities, most of the antiseparational "sting" could be taken out of the situation without sacrificing more than a minor portion of the present benefits to the armed forces. Elimination of civil chaplains presents little difficulty. Neither sacrifice should seem too great.

"Julian The Apostate"

I wish to take exception to the spirit of your editorial titled "Julian The Apostate" (August 7).

My reaction is not to your treatment of Wadleigh, for whose species I hold no brief, nor to your implied verbal pot-shots at pseudo-intellectuals who go off half-cocked. I do feel you have maligned the dignity of reason by suggesting that those who sense a need for progressive action should "just do nothing" or "try to take their minds off the problem by just going ahead with the job they are being paid for doing."

The handle you have hung on such persons is "intellectual" (and no doubt you are thinking in terms of the long-haired, Washington Square variety). "One characteristic of the intellectual," you say, "is the agonizing responsibility that appears to weigh on him for the condition of the world."

You would have it, then, that any individual who feels in his own small way responsible for the condition of the world is an intellectual. And if he responds actively to his agony, his resumed status as such is even more notably marked as undesirable.

But if he asks himself, as you advise, "what reasons he has for supposing that the condition of the world will be better for his personal intervention in the processes of history," and if he concludes meekly that he has none, then he is fairly certain of avoiding the brand of "intellectual."

Indeed, what would be the condition of the world if those who made its history had instead permitted themselves to be lulled to sleep by the inferiority complex you recommend? One can only satisfy the conscience by following its dictates, and a man should not be sneered at as an intellectual for doing what he thinks right, even though it turns out wrong.

Antidote To World Blues

By Malvina Lindsay

U. S. Underground

TWO YOUNG men talking to me within the same hour have made me feel that perhaps the world does have a chance.

The first talked by telephone. His voice was of the under-35 kind—vigorous, enthusiastic. He told how before the first of the year 20 or more young men from as many different countries would arrive in Charleston, W. Va., to spend a year working in the town, living in Charleston families. By March the same number of young men from Charleston territory would be going abroad to work a year in the countries from which the visitors came.

This was a project of the Charleston Junior Chamber of Commerce, I was told proudly. Initiated by this group, it had been adopted by the National Junior Chamber of Commerce. Eventually the 2000 Junior Chambers of the country might each be sponsoring 25 young men coming and going—a total of 50,000 each way. Travel expenses would be borne by each chamber for its own group. To my surprise, I learned there were Junior Chambers of Commerce in India, Burma, China, New Zealand and most European countries, who were paying the ways of the representatives they were sending to Charleston. What a uniform world it was, as well as a small one!

I thought of the teacher, student, worker exchanges already in progress, of how solidly they were building.

I thought of Americans who had come back from Europe, especially Germany, depressed over the future, and how often they had brightened when exchange of persons was mentioned. I had heard many of them say that bringing nationals of other countries here was "about the only thing that helped" in making the American system understood abroad.

YET I warned my enthusiastic caller there were always some misfits, some mistakes in exchange projects. He brushed that aside with an "of course," went on to tell of how the project was expected to enrich the life of Charleston (population around 75,000) as well as help the foreign visitors.

When he hung up I had almost forgotten the crookings about tomorrow I had been reading and hearing on all sides—the pronouncements of men too old to fight on the inevitability of war; the resigning of the nation by self-styled realists to nothing but a constantly growing world armament race; the vague declaimings of orators, male and female, on "Americanism" as a Chinese wall against all world unpleasantries. For here was a heartening example of grassroots action going on beneath the noisy, bellicose surface of American life.

Shortly afterward another young man, this time from the financial world, talked with me of the Nation's greatest fear next to an atomic war—a depression. We agreed the present decline in business wasn't "it." In fact he didn't see "it" looming ahead anywhere. The decade of the 1950's he declared confidently, should be the best yet in American life—barring of course war.

BUT I countered, what about all those cycle trends that converge at a low point in the 1950's on the cyclists' charts? What about this haunting shadow of "overproduction" that will grow more menacing when this country curtails its foreign aid programs? How could the great productive machine we built up in war be kept going with a continuing drop in exports in a dollar starved world?

"Those are real problems," admitted the young man, "but we'll lick 'em! Listen," he went on deep earnestness, "nothing can make me believe we won't be able to solve this overproduction problem. Why with our technical knowledge, our organizing brains, our initiative, our imagination, and with the whole world so desperately in need of our products, it's simply impossible to believe we'd sit back helplessly and let another depression take over. I tell you we'll find a way for the world to get our products, and it won't be on a hand-out basis either!"

This was something different from the prosperity-around-the-corner pep talk of the 1920's. I felt new hope rising. Perhaps the time would come when Americans with a conscience would not feel guilty about overproduction in a world two-thirds full of want. Perhaps this country really would fulfill the destiny seen for it by its founders.

Perhaps, I thought as the young man walked away, I had been seeing and hearing too many of the wrong people. Perhaps I had been missing the real Americans.

Careless Mothers

Having read of so many so-called accidents to babies from strangulation and suffocation, I think the mothers of these innocent children should be dealt with by the law for their carelessness.

In spite of all the labor saving devices today no one of the average young inexperienced mothers thinks twice, when she leaves her baby on its stomach for long stretches at a time about what may happen; nor does she stop to think when she sticks a bottle in her mouth and goes about her house work that the baby might strangle.

What has become of the mother of not so long ago, who gave her undivided attention to infants?

Washington Calling

Tragedy Of Hawaii

THE TROUBLE in Hawaii appears to be approaching a stage in which intervention by the Federal Government will be inevitable. This is what President Truman has tried to avoid, firmly rejecting all prayers and petitions to step into the middle of the bitter strike that has torn the Pacific paradise asunder.

Childs

Considerable resentment is felt here toward Hawaii's Governor Ingram M. Stainback. The feeling is that if Stainback had been less adamant and less determined to stamp out what he appears to be convinced is a Communist attempt to seize control of the islands, the longshoremen's strike might have been settled peaceably some time ago.

Under Stainback's leadership the Hawaii Legislature has now moved to take over the stevedore companies and break the strike by recruiting non-union workers. This move seems at present at least to be meeting with some success.

But the peril is that the strike may be communicated to other seafaring unions and the paralysis spread from Hawaii to ports on the mainland. That would necessitate intervention under the Taft-Hartley Act, which is what the President has wanted to avoid.

Whether Harry Bridges' International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union is actually Communist-controlled is, in a sense, beside the point. It is beside the point because the net effect of the strike is to strengthen the position of world communism in a vital and strategic spot.

A MAJOR EFFECT of the 103-day-old, longshoremen's strike, with its Communist charges and counter-charges, has been to stop the move for Statehood for Hawaii. It is dead for this session of Congress and it will be difficult to revive it next session.

In the opinion of many familiar with the Territory it is only through statehood that Hawaii can become truly a bastion of American democracy in the Pacific. Short of statehood with voting representation in Congress, every department in the islands will be scanted by a grudging Congress.

So the vigorous move that had seemed to assure statehood for Hawaii and perhaps for Alaska, too, is brought to a standstill. The peoples of the islands are set against one another in deep hostilities that will not soon be erased. Hawaii's economy has been seriously disrupted.

These are the obvious consequences that accrue to communism that is everywhere interested in fomenting chaos and breakdown. There are secondary consequences almost as serious.

The hold the maritime unions have over Alaska is as arbitrary and as rigid as over Hawaii. Such a reasonable and liberal-minded man as Alaska's Governor Ernest Gruening has spoken both in public and in private of the way in which the development of the Territory has been hampered by the arbitariness of the union.

Alaska today is an ever-more strategic spot than Hawaii. Statehood is essential there, too, to develop the resources that can mean a strong and vital community.

The monopoly of the union is matched by a virtual monopoly on shipping held by the Alaska Steamship Co. Gruening has frequently protested the rates charged by the line and the limited service provided by a small number of ships.

This may well be a highly significant relationship. A business monopoly invites a union monopoly. The combination invites irresponsibility and arbitrary behavior—an open door to communism.

IF THE HAWAII strike spreads to the mainland, it can produce some very embarrassing results. The Executive Council of the CIO, with its preponderant anti-Communist majority, has been very slow in taking action against Bridges and other CIO leaders who defiantly follow the Communist line.

That action may come at the CIO convention in Cleveland at the end of October. But before that can happen, the maritime unions may have struck on the mainland and that strike could coincide with strikes in steel and motors, which have an economic as contrasted to a political motivation.

For unions interested in true collective bargaining to get higher wages and a better status communism is a heavy liability. That is part of the tragedy of Hawaii—that the workers' case for a wage increase has been lost sight of in the political repercussions of the strike.

Pay Demands In Steel Called Bid for Slump

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—The steel fact-finding board was told today that steel workers, by their fourth-round wage demands, are asking for a depression and paychecks that go up and down like a roller-coaster.

This testimony was given on the second day of the period allotted the steel industry for presentation of its case.

Dr. Jules Backman, a New York University economist who testified as an expert for the industry, attacked the ability-to-pay theory offered by the CIO United Steelworkers to support a demand for a 30-cents-an-hour package increase.

He told the three-man presidential fact-finding board:

"Adherence to this theory would result in chaotic wage structures, job opportunities, create high-reduced corporate savings, impair incentives and in turn reduce job opportunities, create high-wage costs based upon temporary conditions, and cause wages to fluctuate erratically."

The union, in its turn earlier before the board, argued that Big Steel well could afford a fourth-round wage boost because of its sizable postwar profits.

The USW-CIO is asking a 12½-cent wage boost plus social insurance and benefits.

The three-man board is hearing both sides before making its recommendations to President Truman by August 30. The recommendations are not binding on either side.

Another witness on behalf of the steel industry, John H. Hancock, chairman of the American Management Association, said a fourth-round increase in steel might spark a new United States depression.

First Gallatin Awards Made As 8 Retire from Treasury

Eight Treasury Department employes, who managed to accumulate 343 years of departmental service between them before their retirement August 1 were given special acclaim yesterday.

They were the first retiring employes to receive the newly established "Albert Gallatin Award," which was presented to them with the personal best wishes of their former boss, Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder.

The awards were made on the day marking the 100th anniversary of the death of Gallatin, who served as fourth Secretary of the Treasury. The awards are certificates of merit and will be presented in the future to all retiring employes, who have served 20 years or more in the department, or who have shown exceptional and outstanding service.

Among the eight employes so honored yesterday was Edmond W. J. Healy, 68, of 1404 Buchanan st. nw., who has spent most of his 50 years and 11 months of Government service printing currency.

Stamps to Notes

Healy has printed everything from 1 cent stamps to million-dollar Treasury notes. Department officials estimated that if the currency he printed were all in one dollar bills, the sum would have made a stack over 60 miles high, or a ribbon 97,000 miles long representing more than a billion dollars.

Then there was Arthur J. Scott, 62, of 4110 11th st. se., with 35 years and 11 months of service in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. From the time he started work as an unskilled worker until last March, Scott never took a day of sick leave.

Others were:

Albert W. Joyce, 62, of 3200 16th st. nw., who started work as an investigator in the old Internal Revenue Bureau 36 years and three months ago during the old prohibition era.

Served more than 50 years

Mrs. Hattie M. Baden, 60, Route 1, Culpeper, Va., who chalked up 31 years of service, starting as a clerk in the Bureau of Internal Revenue and ending as an Internal Revenue accountant and auditor.

Age a Secret

Mrs. Cecelia Weissbaum (age her secret, of 5923 14th st. nw., who ended 42 years and 4 months of service, retiring as a clerk in the Division of Loans and Currency, Bureau of the Public Debt.

Mrs. Addie S. Wathen, 65, of 1512 U st. se., who entered Government service 47 years and 1 month ago as a printer's assistant in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. She retired as an assistant section chief in the Office of the Register of the Treasury, Bureau of Public Debt.

Charles C. Freer, 66, of 4411 13th pl. ne., who retired as vault keeper in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, after starting there as a laborer 49 years and 3 months ago.

Marden B. King, 67, of 4110 Branch ave., Silver Spring, Md., who spent 51 years and 1 month in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. King started as a laborer and retired as a public debt clerk.

Elkton Girl Tops in 4-H Dress Review

Madeline Feucht, 17, of Elkton, Md., won top honors in yesterday's dress review contest, one of the highlights of the twenty-seventh annual State 4-H Club week here.

Madeline entered the review in a three-piece black and white outfit which she said cost her $11.86 to make. A 4-H'er for five years, Madeline has created 56 garments for herself.

As contest winner, she will represent the Maryland clubs in the National 4-H fashion review in Chicago in December.

Second place in the State contest went to Elizabeth Suit, 19, of Davidsonville, for a white crepe polka-dotted dress that she made for $3.96.

Beverly Fishpaw, 15, of Westminster, took third place and Mary Lee Parker, 15, of Berwyn, was fourth.

Mrs. C. B. Norton of Cabin John, Md., was one of five 4-H leaders presented Clover Awards for long service, receiving a diamond pin denoting 20 years of 4-H activity.

The other leaders honored received pearl pins for 15 years' service. They are Mrs. Harvey Hill, Howard County; Miss Belva Coons, Taneytown; Mrs. Eugene Sellman, Baltimore County, and William McCubbin, Rock Hall.

The windup meeting at the new Armory last night saw 30 of the group inducted into the All-Stars—the 4-H honor society—including two Washington area youths.

The two area inductees are Harold King, 20, in Clarksburg, Montgomery County, and Edward Downey of College Park. Downey is the son of Mylo S. Downey, former Maryland State 4-H leader who is now doing 4-H work in Greece.

UAW Board Authorizes Ford Strike

Detroit, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—The CIO United Auto Workers executive board today authorized a Nation-wide walkout of 115,000 Ford Motor Co. employes "if and when necessary."

No strike date was set. That was left to the negotiating committee headed by UAW President Walter P. Reuther, who promised to continue peace talks as long as there is hope of achieving fourth-round demands of the union.

They include pensions, a health and medical care plan and a pay hike.

Approval by the 23-member policy-making board was routine, but it was expected to quicken contract negotiations, stalemated since early June.

Necessary under the union constitution, the board's action followed announcement by the State Labor Mediation Board that 87,000 Michigan Ford workers voted 7 to 1 to strike, if necessary.

Ford employes outside the State previously sanctioned a walkout by a similar ratio.

Reuther, although treading cautiously, warned a strike will be called "if and when necessary to win the just demands of Ford workers."

The board action paved the way for a possible strike as early as August 20.

Clark Indorsed By 9-2 Vote in Senate Group

By The Associated Press

Attorney General Tom Clark's nomination to be an associate justice of the Supreme Court got a 9-to-2 indorsement yesterday from the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Senators Donnell (R., Mo.) and Ferguson (R., Mich.) voted against recommending confirmation by the Senate. Donnell wanted Clark called in for questioning, and Ferguson backed his demand.

Later Ferguson issued a statement saying that the committee's action in refusing to call Clark to testify was "an outrage to the American public." He said there are "various matters now of public record that should be subject to an open hearing." He did not specify what those matters were.

The committee, without opposition, also approved the nomination of Senator J. Howard McGrath to succeed Clark as Attorney General. McGrath is a Rhode Island Democrat and chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Senate action on Clark's nomination is expected Monday. The Senate Republican Policy Committee already has announced there will be no organized GOP opposition.

The Texan thus appeared sure of a seat on the Nation's highest bench before his fiftieth birthday, which comes September 23. He has served longer than any other member in President Truman's Cabinet, which he entered in June, 1945.

Clark was born in Dallas, the son and grandson of lawyers. He attend Virginia Military Institute, served in the first World War, and got his law degree from the University of Texas in 1922. He practiced law with his father and brother for a while, became civil district attorney for Dallas County in 1927, and joined the Department of Justice as an attorney in 1937. He never has been elected to a public office.

Union Offer To Unload Ship Rejected

Honolulu, Aug. 12 (AP).—The Governor's Food Committee today rejected an offer by striking stevedores to unload the Hawaiian Refiner as a food relief ship.

The Hawaiian Refiner, a Matson Line freighter, is now at San Francisco after having made two special trips as a relief ship. The union a month ago announced it would not unload any more Matson ships, but recently offered to let the Hawaiian Refiner come again.

Judge Gerald C. Corbett, chairman of the Governor's Food Committee, notified the striking CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union:

"You are hereby advised that this committee sees no further need for any discussion with your union on the subject of relief ships."

He said that under the new law putting the Territory of Hawaii into the stevedoring business, stevedoring facilities other than the union's, "are or soon will be available."

Owners Avert Shutdown of Soft Coal Pits

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—A threatened complete shutdown of the Nation's soft coal mines was averted yesterday when Northern and Western producers decided not to challenge John L. Lewis' three-day work week order.

They rejected a proposal to close down their mines on Monday in an effort to force Lewis' hand. While claiming they have a legal right to do so under the Taft-Hartley labor-management law, the operators said they did not choose to "revert to the law of the jungle."

After both operator and United Mine Workers representatives had agreed that the decision meant there would be no complte coal shutdown, at least until late September or early October, they recessed their contract talks here until August 23.

Union negotiators headed by UMW Vice President Thomas Kennedy previously had rejected—for the second time—the operators' offer to renew the old coal contract until March 31, 1951, without any changes in wages or working conditions.

Bowie Area Assails Water Main Charges

A mass meeting of citizens and property owners of the Bowie-Highbridge - Glendale - Seabrook area to protest a Washington suburban Sanitary Commission rule on water main charges will be held at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday in Odd Fellows Hall, Bowie, Md.

The area has been included in the sanitary district and property owners must hook up to sanitary commission mains. The commission has ruled that the property owner must pay for the cost of hook-up from the water main instead of from the property line as in most communities.

Residents point out that the owner on the far side of the road must pay for considerable more distance than the owner on the side next to the water main. In many instances the cost is two and three times as much.

Construction of water mains is now underway from Seabrook and is expected to reach the Bowie limits within the next two weeks.

Anti-Smoke Masks Tried Under Water

The Fire Department yesterday experimented with anti-smoke masks for underwater rescues.

Results of tests at the Anacostia swimming pool were reported to be promising. Further experiments are planned.

Some eight members of No. 1 Rescue Squad were able to stay under water for as long as five to eight minutes.

A few used Scott air packs, a self-contained breathing apparatus, while others tried out the McCaa masks. Both are standard equipment here for use in buildings where the air is contaminated.

The tests were carried out pending study of the adaptability of Navy diving equipment for Fire Department rescue work. The study was ordered after 2-year-old Marily Lee Cope drowned when she tumbled off her family's boat in the Anacostia River last month. The child's body was recovered by Navy divers too late to revive her.

Cotton Control Bill Is Cleared By House Vote

By The Associated Press

The House yesterday approved a conference report on a bill that would give the Secretary of Agriculture tighter controls on cotton production in dangerous surplus periods.

The measure, which still must be approved by the Senate before it can go to the White House, would require growers to vote on whether they want production controls whenever supplies exceed demand.

Unless two-thirds of the producers favored such controls, the Government could reduce its price support guarantees sharply.

The bill also would establish a cotton quota of 21,500,000 acres next year if controls are imposed—as expected—compared with the more than 26 million acres planted this year.

In future years, the Secretary would be required to set quotas that would result in the production of 10 million bales or one million bales fewer than total anticipated demand, whichever is smaller.

Representative Stephen Pace (D., Ga.) told the House the Nation's cotton acreage eventually will be cut below 18 million if production controls continue to be required.

Meanwhile, a meeting of the Senate Agriculture Committee to consider a new "compromise" farm bill was postponed until next week. The session originally was set for today but Senate farm leaders feared many members would not be able to attend on Saturday.

House D. C. Unit Turns Tables, Fetes Morris at Luncheon

House District Committee members yesterday played host at a Capitol luncheon to J. Wilmer Morris, Washington seafood broker.

The lunch was planned to celebrate Morris' sixty-second birthday and to reverse the more frequent roles in which Morris is host and members of the District committee are his luncheon guests.

Yesterday's celebration was arranged by William N. McLeod, jr., clerk of the House District Committee.

McLeod explained that Morris frequently plays host to District committee members and others at luncheons aboard his boat, the Canvasback, anchored off Maine ave. sw.

With McLeod and Morris at the luncheon in the Speaker's Dining Room at the Capitol were three Senators, Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), Guy Cordon (R., Ore.) and Kenneth Wherry (R., Nebr.).

Jail Sentence Follows Threat To Witness

A youthful motorist drew a 30-day jail term for intimidation in Fairfax Police Court yesterday when he was found guilty of threatening a witness while awaiting trial on a reckless driving charge.

Earle Stephen Clem, 19, Route 4, Alexandria, Va., was sentenced to jail by Judge Harry Carrico after witnesses testified he had threatened the complaining witness during the court's luncheon recess. The youth also was found guilty on the reckless driving charge, for which he was ordered to pay a $25 fine.

Clem had been summoned to court to answer a warrant sworn out by A. M. McClure, 301 Jefferson dr., in the Jefferson Manor subdivision, who charged him with operating his automobile in a reckless manner along Jefferson dr. on August 10. Originally scheduled for 10 a. m., the case was held over until the afternoon session due to a crowded docket.

According to testimony of B. L. Houck, 303 Jefferson dr., Clem approached McClure during the recess and threatened him with bodily harm unless McClure refused to press the reckless driving charge. Houck, a prosecution witness, immediately swore out a second warrant, charging the youth with intimidation.

In imposing the sentence, Judge Carrico told Clem: "If I were to let your action go unpunished, it would tend to undermine a system of justice under which any person, at any time, can feel free to swear out a warrant or appear voluntarily as a witness when he feels that an illegal act has been committed."

The youth appealed the case, and was released under $500 bond pending Circuit Court action on the appeal.

The estate consists of 125 acres of land near Potomac, Md., valued at $40,000 and $2500 in personal property. Under terms of the will, all of it goes to his widow, Mrs. Evelyn B. Gordon, 2139 Wyoming ave. nw. Her attorney is Leo A. Rover.

The delay in seeking probate was explained by a source close to the family who said that it had been believed that all of Mr. Gordon's property was held jointly with his wife. Recently, the property mentioned was found to have been in his name only and court proceedings were necessitated.

Falls Church will acquire its first municipal property storeyard in the near future, relieving the City Hall, police station and homes of city officials of the burden of storing supplies and equipment, according to City Manager Roy F. Dunn.

Dunn said the city expects substantial savings under the new arrangement, which will cut down on losses through petty thievery and minor damage.

Collections Slated For Catholic Shrine

Special collections will be taken up in Roman Catholic Churches of the Archdiocese of Washington Sunday for the building fund of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at Catholic University.

Similar collections have been made in other dioceses during the past months as part of a Nation-wide drive for the five million dollars needed to complete the shrine.

Completion of the shrine has been set for 1954, the centenary of the Definition of the Dogma of the Immaculate Conception.

Actual beginning of the shrine dates back to 1913, when the late Bishop Thomas J. Shahan, then rector of Catholic University, appealed to Catholic women in the United States to erect a shrine to Mary in Washington.

The following year Pope Pius X blessed the national shrine and later gave Bishop Shahan a donation to aid in the work Similar blessing and encouragement were given the work by Popes Benedict XV and Pius XI.

First mass on the site of the high altar was said in 1920 in the open field on the university campus where the great shrine was to be erected. That same year the cornerstone was laid.

Since work began, more than two million dollars have been spent on the shrine in the crypt, the only part of the building which is entirely completed.

Architecturally the shrine is round-arched Romanesque. Until the rise of Gothic architecture this was a dominant ecclesiastical style, and was used in churches in France, Italy and Germany.

The vast crypt, 458 feet long and 320 feet wide, is said to provide the largest crypt floor space in the world. Fifty-eight columns of granite and marble from all over the world support the ceiling of the arch.

Ceilings are of Gustavino tile with mosaic inserts, and the groinings of the arches above the altars are covered with symbols of early Christian doctrines in gilt and colored ceramic. The 40,000 pieces of marble in the mosaic floor of the crypt came from more than 20 countries.

The crypt itself is cross shaped to symbolize Christ at the head, in the Blessed Sacrament Altar, Mary, symbolized by the Mary Altar, and Saint Joseph, symbolized by the laity in the body of the crypt.

The $50,000 Mary Memorial Altar, gift of the International Federation of Catholic Alumna is made of semitransparent golden onyx from Algiers. It is an equal distance from the 15 altars in the northeast and west apses.

Director of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception since 1940 has been the Right Rev. John J. Reilly. Under his direction the shrine debt of $140,000 was paid off and the current drive for funds begun.

Monsignior Reilly is also editor of the Salve Regina, quarterly bulletin of the shrine, which is sent to benefactors throughout the world.

National Shrine . . .

AS IT WILL BE—Architect's drawing of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at Catholic University. Collections for the building fund of the shrine will be taken up in all Catholic churches in the archdiocese on Sunday. Construction has been underway since 1920 and officials hope the shrine will be completed by 1954

Arlington Adventists to Start Construction of New Church

IN ARLINGTON—Architect's drawing of the new Arlington, Va., Seventh-day Adventist Church to be erected at Lincoln and South 9th sts. Construction wil begin following ground-breaking ceremonies Wednesday

Construction of a new $65,000 Seventh-day Adventist Church in Arlington, Va., will begin following ground breaking ceremonies Wednesday.

Elder Andrew J. Robbins, pastor of the church, said that final arrangements for financing the new building were completed by the church, the Potomac Conference and the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists last week.

Ground breaking ceremonies will be at 7 p. m. Wednesday at the site of the new church, Lincoln and S. 9th sts. Elder Dean A. Ochs, president of the Columbia Union Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, will speak at the program.

Plans for the church include a main auditorium seating 200, a glass-enclosed mothers' room, and a special room for women's activities.

Members of the church plan to do much of the work of erecting and decorating the new brick building themselves. In the near future they will launch a drive for additional funds for use during construction.

The Arlington church was organized in 1893 and has been meeting in its present building since 1907. Limited space has made it necessary for many of the congregation of nearly 100 to stand during worship services.

Elder Roggins, the pastor, is also an associate professor of religion at the Washington Missionary College in Takoma Park. For six years he was a missionary in China.

Cleric Says Czechs Beat Jailed Priest

Prague, Aug. 12 (AP).—A high Roman Catholic churchman today reported he has evidence some Catholics arrested in the church-state war are being mistreated in Czechoslovak prisons.

This church source mentioned particularly Father Alois Zmrzlik, private secretary of the Vatican's mission in Prague. He was arrested early in July and is reported held in Pankrac Prison here.

The church informant claimed to have information Father Zmrzlik had been beaten and still was being subjected to long questionning. He claimed also that attempts to get food to the priest were thwarted.

New Conflict Looms

Meanwhile, the possibility of a new controversy between the Catholic Church and the Czech regime developed over the Vatican's appointment of two new bishops in Slovakia without submitting their names for Government approval.

The new appointees, to be consecrated Sunday, are: Msgr. Ambrosius Lazik, who has been serving as apostolic administrator of Trnava, and Msgr. Robert Pobozny, who has been capitular vicar of Roznava.

Both clergymen publicly expressed their loyalty to the Czech primate, Archbishop Josef Beran, by signing his last pastoral letter, issued June 26. That letter, which accused the Czech government of persecuting the church, was branded by the state as "a subversive and anti-state document."

11 Named For Old Sees

(A Vatican dispatch said Msgr. Lazik had been named titular bishop of Appia and Msgr. Pobozny titular bishop of Neila. Vatican sources explained the two bishops were not named for sees in Czechoslovakia, but were appointed titular bishops of places which existed in the early Christian centuries in Asia Minor.)

The Vatican representative in the Czech capital denied reports by Prague diplomatic sources saying the two new bishops were appointed "bishops in partibus infidelium."

They said this term meant the Vatican now considered Czechoslovakia was ruled by nonbelievers. A spokesman for the Holy See's nunciature, however, described these reports as untrue.

Results of a year of training, climaxed by two weeks of intensive summer camp work at Ft. Meade will be assessed today in the 163d Military Police Battalion, District National Guard.

The unit, completing its summer camp, will undergo final inspection and conclude with a formal parade in full ceremonial uniform. Sunday, the men will return to Washington and be paid off at the Armory. Already, marksmanship records for the unit have exceeded expectations, officers said, partly because of many war veterans in its ranks and partly because of winter practice.

Falls Church School Budget Hearing Set

The Falls Church City Council will hold a public hearing Monday at 8 p. m. in the Madison School on its 1950 school budget, which calls for a school tax of $2.65 per $100 of assessed valuation.

School officials are still in the process of rearranging budget estimates under a school budget totaling about $159,000, after a Fairfax Circuit Court ruling that two of the three schools within its boundaries shall be retained by Fairfax County.

The school tax rate will represent the same rate paid by Falls Church residents last year to Fairfax County. Added to the general tax rate of $1.90 per $100 of assessed valuation, approved at a separate budget hearing last month, it brings the total city tax rate to $4.55.

Cost of operating the city's one-school system may drop as much as $50,000 to $70,000, as compared with estimates of similar operating costs for the previous year, according to City Attorney LaRue Van Meter. Fairfax operated the schools last year, since it was not until June 6 that the city won legal jurisdiction over its school system.

Under the new ruling, Falls Church will have to pay to send its students to the Fairfax-owned-and-operated Falls Church High School and the Oak Street Elementary School.

But officials estimate tuition costs will be approximately canceled out by payments from the county for Fairfax students attending the Madison Elementary School.

On the basis of last year's enrollment figures, Falls Church would pay the county approximately $75,000 for education of about 530 pupils. In turn, on similar 1948 enrollment figures, Fairfax would give the city $72,240 for 602 county children enrolled in the Madison School.

Elementary tuition fees are $120 per child, and high school fees are $120 for white students. Negro high school students from Falls Church will attend Arlington County Schools at a cost of $150 each to the city.

Gen. Fries and Wife to Mark 50th Anniversary on Tuesday

Maj. Gen. Amos Alfred Fries (ret.), chief of chemical warfare during World War I, and Mrs. Fries will observe their fiftieth anniversary Tuesday.

Adding to the happiness of the occasion is the expected release next week from Children's Hospital of two grandchildren who were stricken with polio about two weeks ago. They are thought to be out of danger.

The children are Carol, 5, and Keith, 4, son and daughter of Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Robert G. Merritt, who live with General and Mrs. Fries at 3305 Woodley rd. nw.

In addition to Mrs. Merritt, General Fries, 76, and his wife, 72, have three other children: Barbara, wife of W. Theodore Pierson, Washington attorney; Elizabeth, wife of Shirley Hurst, Miami newspaperman; and Lieut. Col. Stuart Gilbert Fries, Fort Knox, Ky. They will all be present for a quiet anniversary dinner at the Army-Navy Club Tuesday.

General and Mrs. Fries were married August 16, 1899 in Medford, Oreg., following a courtship that began before he entered West Point.

General Fries subsequently served as an engineering lieutenant in the southern Philippines under General (then Captain) Pershing, fighting the Moros.

In 1906-1909 he designed the modern San Pedro (Calif.) harbor, first modern artificial harbor in the United States.

Assigned to France, in World War I, he served a week as director of roads and was then ordered by General Pershing to organize a chemical warfare service. In 1929 he was retired at his own request.

5 New Polio Cases In Area, 1 in D. C.

Five new cases of polio were reported yesterday in the Greater Washington area, one in the District, three in Prince Georges County, and one in Montgomery County. Two of the cases were the bulbar type.

These brought the District area total to 73 cases this year.

The District case, one of the bulbar type, was a 7-year-old girl in the 1100 block of 46th st. se., admitted to Children's Hospital yesterday. It was the District's twenty-fifth case.

The three in Prince Georges County were all in Hyattsville.

They were an 11-year-old boy from the 3900 block of Oliver st., admitted to Children's Hospital, Wednesday; a 17-year-old boy of the 4100 block of Nicholson st., diagnosed as bulbar polio and admitted to Gallinger Hospital, Thursday; and a 9-year-old boy of the 5800 block of 44th ave., admitted to Children's Hospital yesterday. These brought the Prince Georges total to 21 cases this year.

The Montgomery case, tenth of the year, was a 23-month-old boy from the 2700 block of Munson st., Silver Spring. He was admitted to Children's Hospital, Thursday.

Lockjaw Death Here First In 3 Years

Washington's first death from lockjaw since April, 1946, was confirmed yesterday by autopsy on a 57-year-old Brentwood (Md.) truck driver who died Thursday night in Sibley Hospital.

The victim, William H. Shifflette of 3606 Varnum st., Brentwood, cut his finger on a buzzsaw while making scaffolding in the rear yard of his home on July 15.

Records show he was given emergency treatment for the cut finger the same day at Sibley Hospital, but that tetanus antitoxin, often given routinely for such wounds, was not administered at that time.

Five days later, the records show, Shifflette returned to the hospital complaining that his hand was "extremely sore." He was admitted to the hospital under the care of his family physician. Administration of the antitoxin followed even later.

Certificate of accidental death due to tetanus (lockjaw) was issued yesterday following joint autopsy by District Acting Coroner Dr. Christopher J. Murphy and Dr. James I. Boyd, medical examiner of Prince Georges County, Md.

Lockjaw, once the dreaded aftermath of infected cuts, has rapidly declined as a fatality producer since the use of tetanus toxoids and tetanus antitoxins. Untreated, the infection brings death to 9 out of 10 victims.

Innoculations of tetanus toxoids give a relatively safe degree of immunity for a period of about five years. The tetanus antitoxins are given as a combative measure following possible infection by the tetanus bacillus, particularly in puncture wounds or similar closed cut injuries.

In late stages, the antitoxins are injected directly into the spinal column.

First Violence Seen At Aircraft Strike

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 12 (AP).—A mass rally of union sympathizers was staged today at the Bell Aircraft plant and acts of violence were reported for the first time in a two-month-old strike of CIO United Auto Workers.

Police said several persons reported they had been beaten. Tires on some automobiles were slashed and one motorist was arrested for "deliberately blocking" a highway near the plant, police added.

Cases of Black Hairy Tongue Attributed to Penicillin Use

Four cases of black hairy tongue attributed to reaction to penicillin are reported by a Los Angeles physician in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The condition, uncommon but long known in medical history, shows itself in dark discoloration of the tongue with densely matted hairlike filaments that may grow as long as one-half inch.

Only recently has penicillin been suspected in new cases, particularly since the condition resolves itself with discontinuation of penicillin therapy, reported Dr. Samuel A. Wolfson.

"Once the discoloration has developed, it can be reversed by interrupting the penicillin therapy," he wrote. "The tongue will return to its normal state in about one month."

Dr. Wolfson declared it doubtful that mouth washes and rinses would hurry up this return to normalcy.

Commenting on an earlier report by a British physician who noted tongue discoloration in 20 per cent of a penicillin-treated group observed for that specific effect, Dr. Wolfson stated: "I am sure that figures will prove not to be too high if careful observations were made in all persons using penicillin, particularly oral preparations.

Black hairy tongue has been attributed by some physicians as a congenital abnormality that develops in later life. As to penicillin's role, Dr. Wolfson concluded that the antibiotic acts as an irritant, though the mechanism of such action is unknown.

Wind Tunnel Program Approved By Senate

The Senate yesterday unanimously approved a 300 million dollar program to build wind tunnels to test faster-than-sound aircraft and guided missiles.

The bill now goes to the House, whose Armed Services Committee has unanimously approved a similar measure. The bill also calls for the establishment of an air engineering development center.

U. S. Rests Its Case Against 'Tokyo Rose'

San Francisco, Aug. 12 (U.P.).—The Government rested its treason case today against Mrs. Iva Toguri D'Aquino, who was known to the GIs of the Pacific as "Tokyo Rose."

In six weeks of testimony and cross examination, 46 Allied and Japanese prosecution witnesses had taken the stand to build the Government's case against the 33-year-old Nisei who was born in Los Angeles, Calif.

Wheat Pact Exports Total 1,768,690 Bu.

The Agriculture Department yesterday said 1,768,690 bushels of wheat and flour have been sold for export under an international wheat agreement which went into effect August 1.

The agreement — designed to stabilize world supplies and prices —gives this country an annual export quota of 168 million bushels.

Because maximum prices set by the pact are below domestic prices the department is paying exporters a subsidy to enable them to sell abroad.

With Humor, Yet

Video Even Supplies Own Horse Races

By Red Smith

NEW YORK, AUG. 12 (NYHT).—Meandering among the megacycles the other evening, this dial-twister came upon a television show called "They're Off," which (surprise! surprise!) had to do with horse racing. It is respectfully suggested that the program be retitled "Videots' Delight" because it provided for this novice in videocy, at least, a half hour of fairly pure rapture.

It is, as far as is known here, the only production yet conceived which answers the pressing and multiple problem of what to do with your old movies of forgotten horse races, spare radio comedians, photogeneic general managers of horse parks, used horse players, and surplus hardware left over from the more elaborate give-away shows.

Smith

It also offers horse players something—but not much—for nothing, which is certainly the most startling innovation in sports since the invention of ladies' day.

It is going to be a little difficult to describe this program, buf it goes something like this. There's this old favorite of the era of audible, nonvisible radio (which is a lot like the days of the silent movie). His name is Colonel Stoopnagle. He is a sort of kind of mutuel clerk, only a very chatty one.

THEN THERE'S THIS race-caller, who is really Bryan Field, general manager of Delaware Park. Then there are these horse players. Lord knows where the producers got 'em, unless they ran a trap line at Aqueduct in the spring, but you couldn't find a more superbly typical crowd of horse players in a cathedral.

There was a tall, coatless guy with stooped shoulders, who walked up and named the horse he'd picked and, thereafter, had nothing else to say to Colonel Stoopnagle except "Awwghr." There was a kind of dressy guy with glasses, who might have been impersonating a teller loaded with the bank's funds, who played nothing but longshots. There was an ample, smiley lady who bet 'em on the nose and was extremely positive about it. There was the middle-aged businessman with the middle-aged paunch who, you felt sure, would have needed scarcely any provocation to tell about the time he took his wife to Saratoga, lived at the Grand Union all through August, and came home $300 richer than when he went. And there were a couple of others.

WELL, BRYAN FIELD would identify the race, run through the field and give the odds. The horse players would file up and get tickets on their choices from Colonel Stoopnagle. Then you'd see the race, with Mr. Field calling it in his matchless fashion.

There were three races. Players whose selections scored as they were bet, win, place, or show, got points instead of money from Colonel Stoopnagle. At the finish, the confident lady had the most points. That entitled her to try for the grand prize by identifying a horse whose picture was shown on the screen, while somebody chanted a jingle that was supposed to offer clews.

The jingle mentioned that the horse had won his first 12 races. (No, it wouldn't be Man O' War; he got licked in his seventh.) The lady guessed Oatmeal, which was wrong. So she got some hardware, and the others, being less successful, got less hardware.

The whole thing made a great deal of fun. The first race was the Peter Pan Handicap of 1948 at Belmont. When he identified the race Mr. Field didn't say what year it was—there've been 10 Peter Pans—but as soon as he ran down the field this videot recognized it, having seen Escadru win it. So it was fun watching Escadru all the way around, especially because the red-and-yellow blocks of William L. Brann's silks were always easy to pick out.

PICTURES USED on the show are the official photo-patrol films which practically all tracks make now so the stewards can study 'em and correct their mistakes. They're extraordinarily good pictures and, with Mr. Field's audible assistance, the videot sees the race as clearly as can be. The darned things get pretty exciting.

Looking at the show, you realize how very different is the effect of television upon the gate receipts of different sports. Television furnishs a closer view of a fight than you can get anywhere outside the first 15 rows. It is pretty good on football, although the camera's field is a bit too small up to now.

Of all sports, racing is the ideal subject for television. It is a simple thing for the camera to sweep the entire field at any stage of a race. The wide-range lens brings you closer to the backstretch than you can ever be in the grandstand, so you practically look these horses in the mouth and the contest is so uncomplicated it requires no explanation. The only thing television doesn't show is color, and a competent caller can remedy that by identifying the horses.

But there are two reasons why television won't hurt racing attendance. One is that there is an astonishing number of people who have never been to a horse park. For every racing fan it keeps away from the track, television will create three new fans who'll want to go.

Also, there are no $2 windows in a television set.

Eagles Hand Collegians Worst Star Beating, 38-0

By Charles Dunkley

Chicago, Aug. 12 (AP).—Championship class paid off tonight as the Philadelphia Eagles smothered he College All-Stars 38-0 to roll up the most decisive margin in the 16-year-old charity series.

Before a shirt-sleeved throng of 93,780 in flood-lighted Soldier Field, the Eagles, champions of the National Football League, pushed across five touchdowns, plus a field goal, against a completely bewildered collegiate array.

Only once did the hapless Collegians advance as far as the Eagles' 30-yard line in the entire contest. That was in the first period, which was a scoreless affair.

The humiliating shutout found the collegians more inept than at any time since the series started in 1934. Play for almost the entire game was crammed deep in All-Star territory and the Eagles were in complete control almost from start to finish.

Philadelphia's great running back, Steve Van Buren scored the first touchdown of the game in the second period. After that it was just a question of all-around superior play which smothered Head Coach Charles "Bud" Wilkinson's outclassed collegians.

The important names of the college gridiron—George Taliaferro, of Indiana; Bill Fischer of Notre Dame; Chuck Bednarik of Pennsylvania; Pete Elliott of Michigan; Norm Van Brocklin of Oregon; Barney oPle of Mississippi, and Frank Tripucka of Notre Dame—were just ordinary players against the polished, seasoned professionals. Not one of the All-Stars stood out.

All of the Philadelphia scoring, including two ouchdowns in the second period, one in the third, and two more in the fourth were scored by five different players.

Starting lineups:

Philly Fans to Deluge Waitkus With Presents

Philadelphia, Aug. 12 (AP).—Eddie Waitkus, Philadelphia Phillies' first baseman, will be the honor guest next Friday night at the Philis-Giants game here.

The National Leaguer was shot in the chest last June by a girl in Chicago. He's expected to be out of the lineup the rest of the season.

Here are some of the gifts contributed by fans:

A 1949 dodge convertible, television set, two radios, set of golf clubs, several suits and a topcoat, wrist watch, luggage, sport shirts, golf balls and bag, movie camera, cigarette lighter and a cake.

Okrie's Brother Stricken With Polio Again

Lamesa, Tex., Aug. 12 (AP).—Frank Okrie, Albuquerque baseball player, was reported improving today in his second bout with polio. He is the brother of Catcher Jack Okrie, property of the Washington Senators.

Okrie, shortstop for the Albuquerque Dukes of the West Texas-New Mexico League, is suffering from bulbar polio, the most deadly type. But Dr. U. H. Zee said he is "holding his own and no further paralysis is yet apparent." The doctor said the baseball player, formerly from Detroit, has been out of the iron lung several hours at a time.

Contributions have passed the $2000 mark.

Eight-year-old Dorothy Crampton said she had no money. But she offered to sell her prize possession—a ball autographed by the 1935 world champion Detroit Tigers. She said Okrie and his family could have what she gets from the sale.

Giants' Rookie Breaks Vertebra, Lost for Year

Chicago, Aug. 12 (AP).—Bill Kay, 23 year old University of Iowa tackle will be unable to play professional football for one year because of a broken vertebra.

Kay, who has been signed by the New York Giants of the National Football League, said today "I'm afraid I'll have to miss out until the 1950 season." He said his doctor had told him he could not play this season.

Kay underwent a two and a half hour operation yesterday for the broken vertebra.

Andy Andrakakos has just laid down a perfect bunt and is off for first. Hitchcock Steals Home On Weik to Decide 2d

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Boston, Aug. 12.—The Nats spent part of the afternoon and most of the evening trying to do something to the Boston Red Sox and succeeded.

They lost to 'em twice and enabled the red-hot Rd Sockers to leap over Cleveland and into second place, only five games behind the pace-setting Yankees.

Paced by the home run bat of Vernon Stephens, the Hose plastered the Nats in the matinee portion of the day's double-header, 15-7. After a brief pause, they returned and rung up a harrowing 13-11 decision in the nightcap.

Only 4014 turned out for the daylight spectacle. Business was considerably better in the evening as a crowd of 32,359 turned out to see Billy Hitchcock steal home against Dick Weik to dissolve an 11-11 stalemate in the eighth inning.

The Washington pitching was quite awful, to say the least.

Two Big Bosox Innings

Every hurler on the staff except Paul Calvert, who has a sore arm, and Mickey Harris, who works today, sa waction. None was successful.

The Hose had big innings in both affairs. They scored seven times in the sixth inning of the daylight game and enjoyed an eight-run third inning this evening.

Although they had their ace rookie, Mickey McDermott, pitching and staked him to a 9-4 lead, the Red Sox victory in the night cap wasn't achieved until Hitchcock swiped home with two awa; in the eighth.

The Nats had disposed of McDermott, belted outTex Hughson and vaulted into an 11-11 tie which they turned over to Weik, their fifth pitcher.

Weik broke up the stalemate very quickly. He walked Hitchcock and Matt Batts with one away and Joe Dobson, the eventual winner, moved them up with a sacrifice.

Weik Winds Up, Hitchcock Steals

Paying no atention to Hitchcock on third base, Weik wound up preparing to pitch to Dom DiMaggio and as he did Hitchcock sped in with the run that the Sox needed. The one that DiMaggio singled in after that wasn't, but the Sox took it just the same.

Banging 17 hits, the Nats climaxed their uphill drive in the eighth inning when Sam Dente singled Bob Ortiz home with the tieing run.

In the ninth, the Nats had the tieing runs on second and third with two away, but Clyde Vollmer wound up the drawn out affair by popping up.

Boston sent 14 runners to the plate in their eight-run third inning. The jackpot was fashioned on a collection of seven singles, five of them consecutively, a balk and two walks.

Lloyd Hittle, whos tarted, was shelled during the bombardment and Al Gettel, who saw service in both games, finally got the side out only to get himself batted out in the next inning when the Sox upped their margin to 9-4.

Scarborough Chased in 5th

It took the Red Sox five innings to get into the swing of things in the afternoon contest. But once they got started, there was no stopping McCarthy's maulers.

Ortiz put 'em in a hole in the first inning when he dropped a mashie shot into the convenient netting on the leftfield wall for a three-run homer, but the Sox got two of the runs back in their half of the inning.

They tied it in the third and two innings later they punished Ray Scarborough with a four-run uprising that gave them the lead to keep.

Johnny Pesky's single and a walk to Williams set up Stephens' three-run homer. Then followed a single by Doerr, a double by Billy Goodman for another run and another Nats pitcher, with Al Gettel replacing Scarborough. Scarborough walked five in his short stay and the Sox turned four of the passes into runs.

Welteroth Takes Lacing

Not content with a 7-3 bulge, the Bostonians made merry at the expense of Dick Welteroth in the sixth, sending 11 batters to the plate during their seven-run exhibition.

Welteroth, unable to retire a man, was removed after five runs had come in and Enrique Gonzales finally got the side out, but not before two more tallies had checked in, both charged to Welteroth.

In the ninth, the Nats didn't do much about it. Eddie Yost swatted his ninth homer and Ortiz drove in his fourth and fifth runs with a single before Stobbs decided to bear down and wind up the landslide.

Yanks Win, 7-3; Indians Beaten

Byrne Holds Athletics to Four Hits

Philadelphia, Aug. 12 (AP).—Southpaw Tommy Byrne settled down after a shaky first inning to hurl four-hit ball over the last eight frames as New York defeated Philadelphia 7-3 tonight.

The victory kept the Yanks five games ahead of the Boston Red Sox, won a pair from Washington.

Gene Woodling was the big gun in the Yanks' eight-hit attack on Joe Coleman. He drove in four runs with three hits, including a triple and double.

The Yanks put the game on ice with a three-run third round rally. After oWodling's three-bagger scored Joe DiMaggio, who had singled, the league leaders counted two more on a walk and Gerry Coleman's triple. The hit extended Coleman's consecutive hitting streak to 13 games.

New York took the lead in the first inning on Woodling's double with two away after a walk to Phil Rizzuto and DiMaggio's single. Their last two markers came in the fourth on three walks, Woodling's single and Mike Guerra's error.

After the Yanks had taken the lead in the opening frame, the As tied it up in the same inning. Byrne gave them three free tickets to first. Bobby Estalella and Pete Suder then came through with hits.

That was all for Connie Mack's men until the ninth when, with two out, a walk and hits by Ferris Fain and Sam Chapman produced a lone run.

Mintz Wants Louis to Fight Ezzard Charles Next Summer

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Jake Mintz, manager of Ezzard Charles, today asked Joe Louis "to forget about your retirement and fight Charles next Summer."

Charles is recognized as Louis' successor in 46 States after having whipped Jersey Joe Walcott in Chicago last month. He stopped Gus Lesnevich in seven rounds at Yankee Stadium Wednesday night.

Louis, who promoted both those fights, held the world heavyweight title for 12 years before retiring last March.

"You owe it to the public and to Charles," Mintz told the former champion and then added "it would draw a million dollars."

Louis smiled, said nothing.

Homers by Musial, Garagiola Regain Loop Lead for Cards

St. Louis, Aug. 12 (AP).—Gerry Staley, Joe Garagiola and Stan Musial combined their talents tonight to lift the St. Louis Cardinals back into first place in the nip-and-tuck National League pennant chase.

Staley stopped the Pittsburgh Pirates with six hits while Stan and Joe pounded three-run homers to give the soaring Redbirds an 8-to-2 victory before more than 22,000 fans.

The outcome, combined with the Brooklyn Dodgers' defeat at the hands of the Boston Braves, gave the Redbirds a slim half-game margin over the Dodgers.

Staley blanked the Smoky City outfit until two were out in the eighth when Tom Saffell, rookie outfielder, hit his first major league homer, scoring Stan Rojek, who had singled. In only one other inning, the fourth, did the Pirates get as many as two hits. Staley did not pass a batter.

The Redbirds lost no time in routing Big Ernie Bonham, who blanked them with six hits in Pittsburgh July 7. Bonham passed Red Schoendienst and Lou Klein and Musial followed with his 19th homer of the season atop the right field pavilion roof.

Vic Lombardi relieved Bonham in the second and gave up a run on Garagiola's single, a wild pitch, and Klein's double.

The Redbird bats caught fire again in the sixth when Garagiola pounded one out of the park after singles by Ron Northey and Glenn Nelson. Chuck Diering relieved Ron on the base path and later in the outfield. The Cards added another run on a walk to Staley, Lombardi's second wild pitch, Schoendienst's single and Klein's grounder.

The crowd of 22,231 sent the Cards' home attendance total for the season above the million mark.

Bums Bow, 5-3, On Homers by Holmes, Heath

Brooklyn, Aug. 12 (AP).—Tommy Holmes and Jeff Heath each belted two-run homers tonight to spark the Boston Braves to a 5-3 triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers. Nelson Potter went all the way for Boston, scattering seven hits.

The victory ended the Dodgers' six-game winning streak before a homecoming crowd of 31,468.

Resume Play Monday

The game between Bundy and Langston in the 14-and-under G-K class was halted after 4 2/3 innings to allow the other games to be played. The game will be completed Monday at 2 p. m. at Bannaker field.

Takoma and Rosedale, meeting in both the 12-and-under and the 14-and-under A-F sections of the Johnson League, were both playing the second game of their series.

In the 12-and-under class Rosedale evened the series with a 3-2 win; Takoma won the first game, 12-7 on Wednesday. Barry Payne pitched a no-hitter for Rosedale and struck out nine Takomans as well as contributing one of Rosedale's two hits. Fred Dentino added the other Rosedale bingle against Takoma hurler Tommy Tucker.

Takoma Tops Rosedale

In the under-14 group, Rosedale lost to Takoma, 3-2, to even their series also. Takoma scored the winning run in the last of the seventh after Rosedale got two in the first, when Tony Bisogne singled, stole second and scored on a close play at the plate as Phil Perlo also singled to right.

Takoma had the advantage of another close play at home in the sixth when Tom Smith dumped a bunt three feet in front of the plate and Perlo slid in safely, to tie the score. Robbie Smithers tried to score in the confusion after Smith's bunt but was nabbed at the plate.

Knows His Groceries

Fan Whips Up Mixed Salad Over Our Pitched Potato Yarn

(Editor's Note: The following letter was received yesterday from Rear Admiral D. V. Gallery, USN.)

The Washington Post.

Dear Sir:

In regard to the story in The Washington Post August 9 about the dopey base runner who tried to score from third when the catcher, hiding the ball, heaved a potato into left:

The umpire was obviously wrong in ruling this unobservent athlete safe. The runner was OUT.

There is not a single word in the baseball rule book about potatoes or any other groceries.

I predict a bright future in the big leagues for the wily catcher involved in this incident. I also suggest that in order to prevent further waste of food and bewilderment of base runners, who can't tell a baseball from a rutabaga, the big leagues at their next annual meeting should adopt the following rule:

"Base runners shall be entitled to advance one base, without liability of being put out, whenever the team in the field puts in play any vegetable or fruit smaller than a watermelon."

Sincerely,
Sincerely,
D. V. GALLERY,
Rear Admiral, USN.

Bunker Hill Leaves for Legion Finals

The Bunker Hill nine, champions of the Washington Junior American Legion Baseball League for the third successive year, will leave early today for Parkersburg, W. Va., to engage in the national regional finals.

The District's representative will meet winning teams there from Maryland, Virginia and Delaware from August 14 to 17 and if successful will advance to the national sectionals at Trenton, N. J., August 20 to 22. National finals leading to the National Junior American Legion Baseball Championship will take place at Omaha, Nebr., August 31 to September 4.

Before leaving each of the players will be presented by the District Department of the American Legion with a specially inscribed baseball jacket to be worn over the uniform.

Sponsored locally by the Northeast Ford Motor Co., the team will be accompanied by Manager William Pickler, Coach Harry Jacobs, and James A. Munro, vice chairman of the local Legion's athletic commission.

Players making the trip include Ralph Site, George Billups, Francis Dyer, Ernest Settle, Daniel Cookman, Kenneth Atchison, Robert Payne, Robert Fitzgerald, Elson Brittle, Charles Boonhouse, Howard Wise, Robert Dowdney, William Nolan, Robert Frederick, David Keys and Patrick Murphy.

Assault Made Choice in 'Cap

Boston, Aug. 12 (AP).—With only five rivals to beat, the King Ranch's rejuvenited Assault is expected to push his total earnings well over the $700,000 mark in the fourteenth renewal of the Massachusetts Handicap tomorrow at Suffolk Downs.

Only four other owners will be interested in New England's richest turf fixture and, oddly enough, each of them will take some part of the gross value of the $60,200 stake.

With six going, net value to the winner will be $40,350 and $10,000 for place, $5000 for show, $2500 for fourth and $1250 for fifth.

Asault, coming off his $50,000-added Brooklyn Handicap win, will carry top weight of 125 pounds for the mile and a quarter test. That 6-year-old, the 1946 triple champion, is expected to receive his stiffest argument from the Nor Mill Farm's entry of Michigan 3d and Wynford 2d, both Argentinian bred.

The only others of the 42 nominated down to go are Cherry Oca Stable's First Nighter, which has only two seconds to his credit in 15 starts this year, Graham and Byrum's Fancy Flyer and Brookmeade's Going Away.

Caps, Northeast Play 2-2 Deadlock

Aussies Lead Italy, 1-0; Second Match Rained Out

Rain interrupted the match for two hours and a half after Sidwell had raced through the first two sets.

So little daylight remained that Referee Levan Richards announced that the second singles between Frank Sedgman of Australia and Marcello Delbello of Italy would be postponed until 1 p. m. (EST) tomorrow, preceding a scheduled doubles match.

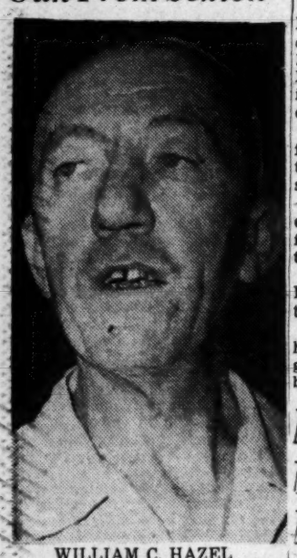
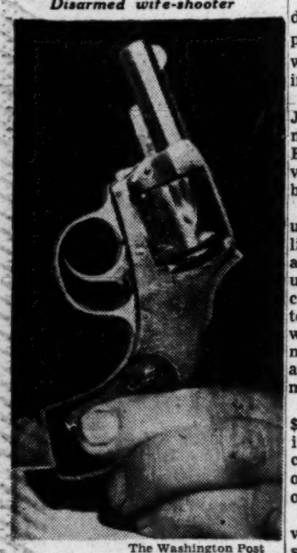
Rookie's One Shot Fells Auto Suspect

Neighbor Took Gun From Sexton



WILLIAM C. HAZEL
Disarmed wife-shooter



The Washington Post
TAKEN FROM SEXTON
Gun used in shooting

A shot from the gun of a rookie policeman fired at 150 feet early yesterday felled a car-tampering suspect as he fled into an alley.

The policeman, Pvt. George A. Killian of No. 2 Precinct station, on the force for about a year, said he noticed the suspect, Robert Ford, 31, of 913 T st. nw., tinkering with a car in the 1600 block of 5th st. nw., at about 4:05 a. m.

Spotting the officer, Ford leaped from the vehicle and dashed toward an alley near 436 Warner st. nw., with Killian in pursuit.

When Ford disregarded two commands to halt, the policeman fired one shot, striking the man in the back.

The suspect was taken to Gallinger Hospital, where his condition was pronounced critical.

Investigation showed the auto had been stolen from a private garage at 1702 5th st. nw. shortly before the shooting.

Man to Get New Trial in Morals Case

A new trial was ordered yesterday for a 41-year-old male employe of the Public Health Service who was convicted here of soliciting prostitution.

The conviction was set aside by Judge Aubrey B. Fennell of Municipal Court. The defendant is Edward F. Kelly, 2126 Pennsylvania ave. nw., who was convicted by Fennell last September.

Kelly was found guilty on the uncorroborated testimony of Police Pvt. Frank N. Manthos, who at the time was assigned as an undercoverman in a campaign to clean undesirables out of downtown parks. Manthos said Kelly was seated in the park after midnight and made the solicitation after inviting Manthos to an apartment for a drink.

Subsequently Kelly was fined $10 for contempt of court in calling a prosecutor a liar in the courtroom, but not in the hearing of Judge Fennell. The contempt order was reversed on appeal.

In setting aside the morals conviction, Judge Fennell said he did so because his recollection of the evidence at the trial was not completely clear. He said he was loth to allow the case to go to the Municipal Court of Appeals for decision since he could not send that court a clear picture of the actual evidence presented.

Almost a year has elapsed since trial, he said, and the prosecutor in the case has left town while the defendant has changed attorneys.

$5000 Offered For Slayer

Baltimore, Aug. 12 (AP).—A $5000 reward was offered today for apprehension of the slayer of Mrs. Emma Kefalos, 60-year-old Baltimore medium who was strangled to death Monday.

Police declined to reveal the name of the person who offered the reward, but said it came from a woman who had been one of Mrs. Kefalos' clients.

Fine Camera Work In Jackpot Movie

By Richard L. Coe

'LUST FOR GOLD,' a meaty melodrama at the Warner, might well have the movies' answer to radio's giveaways—a bit late, but anyway an idea.

This handsomely photographed vehicle for Ida Lupino and Glenn Ford tells you where to find a 20 million dollar jackpot, not precisely where, but in the neighborhood of Arizona's Superstition Mountain. It switches from present to past, giving Novelist Barry Storm the chance to tell you about a lost cache of gold which once, he thinks, came within his grandfather's grasp.

Dat ole debbil Flashback, however, is with us yet, resulting in a story line that verges on confusion, especially since we learn so much from an old couple who couldn't possibly have known all they tell us. Evidently the flashback technique was deemed necessary to keep before the audience that you can learn about jackpots from the movies as well as radio, but the same effect, and a more gripping picture, would have resulted from a straight start-to-finish approach.

Storm called his factual thriller, "Thunder Gods' Gold," and in it he tells of an elusive mine, once sacred territory to the Indians, which his grandfather, Jacob Walz, rediscovered back in the '80s.

Walz lost his mine through his love for a perfidious lady, expertly played by Ida Lupino. Ida is married to an ineffectual fellow, but she's anxious for riches to escape from her Phoenix bakery. When Walz, a loutish Dutchman, comes into Phoenix boasting of his gold, Ida plays him off against her husband. She winds up with the distrust and hatred of both men.

They fight out their mutual hatreds at the mouth of the old mine just as things come to a head a walloping earthquake does, too. Which brings us back to the present and Author Storm's efforts to locate the mine through ancient markings. Through a man-made rock window, the moon shines yearly on the golden spot, but which night, what hour?

Which, dear listener, is the jackpot question.

Despite the flashbacks and unlikely romantic tangles, I found "Lust for Gold" interesting because it has been well photographed and it boasts two of my favorite players, Miss Lupino and Ford.

Ida has several opportunities to be nasty in that womanly way of hers. I think she's one of the few film actresses who knows how to read a line. Sometimes she has to grind her poison from a stone, but the process is invariably gripping.

"LUST FOR GOLD," a Columbia Picture produced and directed by S. Sylvan Simon, screenplay by Ted Sherdeman and Richard English, based upon the book "Thunder God's Gold," by Barry Storm, photographed in Sepia by Archie Stout. At the Warner.

Ford, always a fetching personality, has the chance to be roughly uncouth as the gold-luster who prefers to speak German. At times he manages a persuasive accent into his English, and when he does it's quite effective. Granted this attempt to be gruff is uneven (the more typical Ford comes out when he gives us his Dutchman in love), but at least it's on the different side.

The balance of the cast is able, with William Prince as Storm and Will Geer outstanding as a foxy deputy of the present day. And you'll admire Archie Stout's sepia photography.

Secondary Feature Interesting

Even the Cast Appears Bored With Stereotyped 'Last Fling'

The Metropolitan's "One Last Fling" might well be a description of the story and movie methods of this Alexis Smith-Zachary Scott vehicle.

There's not an original touch in it. The story, lines and virtually every scene have been filmed countless times before and the picture's sole reason for being seems to be to drag them out for "one last fling."

Not that, in itself, the material is not fundamentally sound; the approach, however, is so strictly unimaginative and according to formula that the result is listless and limp.

The story concerns a wife who's tired of doing nothing all day and wants to go back to work. Her husband, having promised a job to a girl he knew in the Army, accidentally gives his wife the job, but also arouses her jealousy. The rest of the picture is devoted to the ins, outs and minor events that put them together for the fadeout.

There's nothing much to be said for the cast except that it exhibits bored acceptance of the script, with the exception of Vera Ann Borg, as a buxom secretary. Veteran of hundreds of movies, Miss Borg illustrates what a smart girl can do about earning a living in Cinema City.

"Drums of India," a secondary feature, is considerably more interesting. Tackling an inordinately complex subject, this does succeed in outlining the religions, castes and customs of a country, which once observed, never fails to stir the sympathy. Though it doesn't attempt to go into even an outline of Pakistan and India, the hints are there of deep chasms. There are some fine shots of such notable wonders as the Taj Mahal.

Independent Offices Have Funds Slashed In Conference Report

A conference report on the big Independent Offices appropriation bill was agreed to late yesterday by Senate-House conferees. No details were announced officially other than that the report recommends a reduction of 45 million dollars under the figure approved by the Senate. The bill carries funds for two-score Federal agencies.

However, it's reported the Civil Service Commission would get a 16-million-dollar budget. The amount is two million dollars more than originally approved by the House and $250,000 less than that voted by the Senate. The commission probably could absorb the cut without making additional layoffs. Without revealing the figure, Senator O'Mahoney said he thought the conferees had treated the CSC "pretty well."

Veterans Administration's Department of Medicine and Surgery is said to have been given the 16 million-dollar increase voted by the Senate over the House. The money, if approved, would prevent a layoff in VA's hospital staff. The Senate also boosted VA's salary fund 25 million dollars over the House figure. A compromise on this item is reported to have been reached—one to force VA to trim its administrative staff further.

The conference report won't be made public until next Thursday.

PEOPLE: Talk is growing that Gordon Clapp, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, will be offered the chairmanship of the Civil Service Commission. The appointment will be made soon after August 20, when the reorganization plan for the commission becomes effective . . . William Batt, jr., is a special assistant to Labor Secretary Tobin. He formerly worked at the Democratic National Committee and plugged hard for the President's reelection . . . Oscar E. Carlton, a VA employe for the past 31 years, has been promoted to director of the records service in contact and administrative services . . . Lydia Marie Heisley has retired after 42 years with the Forest Service.

BEP: About 1000 war service and temporary printers' assistants at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing failed to qualify in the recent competitive test. As a group, these people will be given a real break—they won't be replaced as fast as other nonstatus people who fail competitive tests.

At the suggestion of the BEP, the Civil Service Commission has agreed to replace from 75 to 100 ineligible printer's assistants each month. It will be next July before all are replaced. This is by far the slowest displacement program ordered by Civil Service.

New printer assistants will be given a 26-day training period before they are assigned regular duties. About 800 war service and temporaries made eligible ratings on the test. Up to now, 125 have had their status changed to probational. The first 50 nonstatus people who flunked the test will be laid off September 7.

VA: A "freeze" on personnel in its hospitals and medical facilities has been slapped on by the Veterans Administration. No more hiring will be allowed until after VA knows where it stands budgetwise.

FMCS: A small layoff of conciliators in the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service has started an uproar in that independent agency. The employes laid off are mainly in the field. They are charging the office here has escaped the economy order.

BOOK: A new book, "The Sure Thing," presents a case study of a Federal worker's encounter with State Department's loyalty program. The employe is discharged by the department, but he definitely comes out better in the book than any of his superiors or their methods of handling the case. The author is Merle Miller, a former Washington correspondent for the old Philadelphia Record. The book is interesting reading.

EXECUTIVE PAY: Democratic Majority Leader Lucas yesterday assured Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) that the executive pay raise bill would be brought up in "due course."

He said he had delayed calling it up because of an "implied threat" by certain Senators that they would oppose it unless military, classified and postal-pay-raise bills also were considered.

Flanders threatened to object to the military pay bill unless the executive bill was considered. He said he didn't want to see the executive bill "washed out in a flash flood."

Jobless Roustabout In Marlboro Jail Causes Police Search

Police last night were investigating the statement of an unemployed young father that he trussed his 7-month-old daughter in a sack and tossed her into the Anacostia River.

The father, 21, and a former carnival roustabout, "confessed" while in Marlboro Jail charged with larceny and breaking into a store.

He staid he tossed the child into a sack along with an extra pair of diapers and two pieces of bread, then dumped the burlap bag into the river near the National Guard Armory.

This he said he did July 21 when his common-law wife left the 7-month-old and another child, a 20-month-old boy, with him because he had failed to provide for their support.

The wife got the boy back two days later. When the husband explained the girl's disappearance, the mother asked police to investigate. Police said they had not yet located the missing child's body in dragging operations.

Pedestrian Hit During Storm In Alexandria

Linwood R. Cannon, about 65, suffered head anad internal injuries, police said, when he was struck down by an auto in last night's rain as he was crossing S. Washington st. at Gibbons st. in Alexandria.

Police were unable to determine Cannon's address. He was admitted to Alexandria Hospital in serious condition.

The injured, both admitted to Arlington Hospital, were Mrs. Nellie R. Bender, 59, of Harrisonburg, Va., who suffered a severely lacerated chin in a collision on Lee blvd. in Arlington County, and Frank J. Filek, 5, of Norfolk, Va., who suffered chin lacerations and a possible broken left arm in a crash on Route 50, 2 miles west of Chantilly in Fairfax County.

Arlington police said Mrs. Bender was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Lewis W. Bender, 64, which collided with another auto driven by Eugene Brubaker of Luray, Va. The Filek boy, Fairfax police said, was riding in a car driven by his mother, Mrs. Sara Filek, which crashed into a concrete abutement after she lost control of the vehicle and careened off the highway.

Child Badly Hurt Falling From Car

Three-year-old Stanley Travers was critically injured last night when he fell out of an automobile being driven by his father, John W. Travers, jr., 32, of 8 Helm Green sw., police were told.

The boy was in the back seat of the auto, moving along Alabama ave. se., when a door opened and he fell out, the father said. He took the boy to Providence Hospital, where it was said he suffered a concussion and possible skull fracture.

Baby Rattler Balks 'Posse' Half an Hour

A bright-eyed baby yesterday for half an hour successfully stood off capture by two detective lieutenants, the District morguemaster, a medical examiner and a deputy coroner.

"When we got near—it raised its head and sort of spit," Felber said.

Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy, called to look, admitted the best he could do was verify that the intruder was indeed a rattlesnake.

Dr. James I. Boyd, medical examiner of Prince Georges County, on business at the morgue, and Morguemaster Frank Mena, joined the board of strategy.

While reconnaissance operations were under way, Deputy Coroner Richard Rosenberg appeared on the scene armed with a mop and mopped up the enemy with two well-directed blows.

Apprentice Group Again Hits Schools

The District Apprenticeship Council yesterday renewed its attack on private trade schools, declaring "not more than a handful of the graduates" will "ever find use for their training."

The council, at its quarterly meeting, indorsed appointment by the District Commissioners of a citizens' committee to investigate charges of exploitation of GIs enrolled in the trade schools.

The group has compiled a list of 30 schools which it plans to submit to the citizens' committee for investigation and took the position that "it is up to each individual private trade school to submit proof to the Commissioners Citizens Committee that it is not exploiting the GI Bill of Rights at the expense of the individual veteran, his future and his family."

The council repeated an earlier statement by Robert E. Phelps, employer member, that "not one in 20 of the veterans now attending private trade schools in this area will be able to find employment in any work remotely connected with his training."

The Washington Trade Schools Association, which has blasted the council charges, is preparing a statement in reply to the council charge.

Nevius Tract Construction Bill Presented

750-Bed Arlington VA Hospital 1 of 24 Provided in Measure

Representative Rankin (D., Miss.) yesterday introduced legislation to direct Veterans Administration to proceed with construction of 24 hospital projects, including one on the Nevius tract in Arlington.

The measure would reinstate a 16,000-bed program canceled by President Truman when he sent his budget to Congress in January.

The Rankin bill authorizes VA to build its originally planned 750-bed veterans' hospital on the Nevius tract. The proposed hospital was cut to the more standard size, 500-bed institution, in the President's budget.

The new veterans' hospital for this area was first approved by VA on October 16, 1945, and the Nevius tract site officially approved one year later. Design and supervision of construction were assigned to the Corps of Engineers, Department of the Army. Architectural contracts were awarded York and Sawyer of New York, and Louis Justement of Washington.

Approval of architectural plans and start of construction, however, have been held up, largely by a court fight over purchase price of the 25-acre tract and later by the President's action in January. In February, the United States Court of Appeals, in Richmond, Va., resolved the purchase price dispute, upholding a lower court order setting the price at $1,600,000.

The price was double that fixed by the Government and about one-third the sum sought by the owners.

Enforcement Of Sales Tax To Be Speeded

Enforcement of District sales tax regulations will be speeded starting Monday when 10 field men will be assigned to check Washington stores.

At present, four are at work on a block-by-block check with some precinct policemen assigned to license duties assisting in their areas.

More than 13,200 applications for certificates of registration have been received. Sales Tax Administrator Allan F. Brooke said he estimated this covered about 15,000 individual establishments since many applications were for blocks of chain stores.

Yesterday Brooke ruled that any materials sold by a dental supply house to dentists for use in dental treatment were exempt from taxes. Materials used for diagnosis, such as X-ray film, were ruled taxable.

D. C. Taste for Beer Falters, ABC Tax Receipts Indicate

Beer—the poor man's champagne—was less popular in Washington during the past fiscal year than before and the reason for the decline is a mystery.

Chairman Alan W. Payne of the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday submitted the board's annual report to the Commissioners with a note that beer tax revenue decreased while taxes on all other alcoholic beverages went up.

Payne said he was puzzled by the downward turn of beer. Normally, one might expect the tightening economic situation to divert cash from hard liquor to the malt fluid, Payne noted.

The board last year reported a rise in beer sales and a drop in others. This year's report showed $2,190,009 collected in taxes on all alcoholic beverages except beer, compared to $2,066,453 the previous year.

Beer tax collections in the past fiscal year were $299,476 compared with $301,464 in the 1948 fiscal year.

A total of $776,496 was collected in license fees during the 1949 fiscal year. The number of licenses in effect rose from 2325 to 2393 during the year, with the rise mainly in retailers' Class B and C licenses.

Agriculture Dept. To Order Cut in Hops

By the United Press

Americans aren't drinking enough beer, the Agriculture Department said yesterday. So hops growers will have to reduce their production.

The department said it will exercise its new legal authority to control hops production to prevent a disastrous price slump. How much of a cut will be ordered hasn't been decided.

Man Loses Tug of War, Lands in Jail

Largely because a tenacious saleslady held on to the trousers he was trying to steal, William Moorehead, 28, yesterday was sentenced to 360 days in jail.

Moorehead, a dope addict, according to court testimony, pleaded guilty to assault and petty larceny before Judge Aubrey B. Fennell of Municipal Court.

According to police, the defendant and an unidentified companion walked into the Gruskin Clothing Store, 1737 Pennsylvania ave. nw., and began inspecting trousers. Moorehead's address was listed on court papers as 140 M st. se.

A saleswoman, Mrs. Mary Shanholtz, 35, of 629 E st. se., said she saw Moorehead slip three pairs of pants under a coat he carried over his arm. Mrs. Shanholtz grabbed the trousers under the coat and somewhat of a tug of war developed.

Moorehead's companion ran out of the store followed by William Johnson, 46, a clothes-presser. The latter shouted for police and held the store door shut. Moorehead struck Mrs. Shanholtz, but police arrived in time to arrest him.

Cigarette Burns Prove Fatal to D. C. Woman, 30

Miss Margaret Lafferty, 30-year-old Public Health Service employe, died at 10:30 a. m. yesterday in Emergency Hospital from burns suffered last Friday when she fell asleep while smoking and set fire to her couch.

The woman, who lived at the Cavalier Apartments, 3500 14th st. nw., failed to seek medical aid for more than 13 hours after the incident although she had suffered second and third degree burns to 75 per cent of her body.

Finally a friend had her removed to the hospital. A certificate of accidental death was issued

Kalorama Fieldhouse Dedicated

A rain-thinned crowd of 150 persons last night attended the dedication of a new fieldhouse and flagpole at Kalorama Playground, corner of Columbia and Kalorama rds. nw.

Fletcher S. Tilton, president of the Kalorama Citizens Association, in a brief address, described the history of the location since the property was purchased in 1832 by John Little, who built a home there in 1847.

Two descendants of John Little, Miss Margaret C. Sands and Mrs. Ida Stevens Malcolm, both of whom were born on the property, were introduced by Tilton. He also recalled that the Indian fighter, Gen. George A. Custer, then a lieutenant of cavalry, was quartered there during the Civil War.

Following unveiling of a bronze plaque on the flagpole by Tilton's granddaughter, Judith Tilton, 6, of Baltimore, Mrs. Harvey Wiley, civic leader, raised the flag, and Harry S. Wender, chairman of the District Recreation Board, spoke.

6. Burns are bad business. A first aider's jobs are to relieve pain, prevent infection, and treat shock. For mild burns, apply sterile petroleum or burn ointment, then cover with a layer of sterile, fine mesh gauze, and bandage.

For serious burns, or extensive ones, keep the patient completely quiet, then call a physician.

Arlington School Board Lawyer Quits

Frank L. Ball, jr., Lists Reasons for Action in Letter

Resignation of Arlington School Board Attorney Frank L. Ball, jr., effective this week, was disclosed yesterday by School Board Chairman Barnard Joy.

In a letter dated August 10, Ball told the board that "a number of matters" prompted his action. He complained particularly that the board had failed to live up to an agreement to pay Gus Welch, former quarterback for the Carlisle Indians, a special $300 coaching fee this spring. (Welch was hired at $250 a month as temporary coach at Claude Swanson Junior High.)

The Arlington lawyer also:

1. Charged he had been unable to get accurate information on the status of the Washington-Lee High School athletic fund.

2. Disclosed that in an earlier March 22 letter of resignation he had complained of interference with his duties by E. J. Braun, then school board consultant.

At that time Joy persuaded Ball to withdraw his resignation.

3. Disclosed another complaint in his earlier letter that the school board had rejected a proposed form he submitted for its contracts with architects on school designs. He wanted notice in the contract that payment of fees would be withheld until architects final plans had been completed, Ball said.

Ball said he tried to include the stipulation in the contract after he discovered that about $1000 had been added to the cost of remodeling two rooms in the Fairlington school. This occurred, Ball said, when the architect was advised by the Building Inspector—following completion of the work—that it must be changed to eliminate fire hazard before the rooms could be approved for use.

Dr. Joy stated yesterday that Ball's resignation was due to "a misunderstanding," and said the attorney was "misinformed" on some of the matters mentioned in his letters to the board.

In answer to Ball's complaints concerning Welch, Joy said the coach "has not been recommended for appointment . . . as he does not yet have a Virginia teaching certificate." He added the board "has no record of verbal contracts," in answer to Ball's complaint that former Superintendent Fletcher Kemp and another school official had agreed to pay Welch the $300 fee.

As to the athletic fund, Joy said the audit had been presented publicly to the board, and published in the Arlington Sun.

On Ball's complaints of interference by Braun with his duties, Joy said in effect that the attorney wished to include in the contract matters which were administrative in naturg, and should be worked out among school representatives on State and local levels.

As to specific complaints about the Fairlington school, Joy said he had originally understood from "members of the school staff" that "verbal approval had been given the original plans." He declined to identify those who approved the plans, but admitted alterations were necessary at "somewhat more" than the original planned cost.

Completion Of District, Baltimore Road Urged

Highway Officials Say Eleven Million Dollar Appropriation Required From U. S.

Federal, District and Maryland highway officials yesterday called for an immediate Federal appropriation of 11 million dollars to complete the long-delayed Baltimore-Washington Parkway.

At a strategy luncheon meeting in the Mayflower Hotel officials pointedly emphasized that the Maryland end of the proposed super, divided highway is progressing rapidly with completion scheduled for the fall of 1951. The Federal half of the project, they reported, is still in the mud stage.

Under an arrangement reached several years ago, the State of Maryland agreed to construct the 12-mile stretch from Baltimore city limits to Jessups, near the new International Friendship Airport. Federal funds would be used to construct the remaining 18 miles into the District.

$15,000,000 Outlay

Robert M. Reindollar, chairman of Maryland State Roads Commission, said portions of the roadway from Baltimore to Jessups, Md., were already 50 per cent completed. The Free State expects to spend nearly 15 million dollars as its share of the roadway, he said.

To date, the Federal Government has put up only two million dollars for purchase of rights-of-way and six miles of grading on its section of the highway which runs from the District line at Anacostia Park to Jessups. There has been no work done on the District end since 1943.

The meeting was sponsored by the District Advisory Board of the American Automobile Association.

Representative George P. Fallon (D., Md.) told the group of his recent appeal to President Truman to ask Congress for an 11 million dollar appropriation to finish the project.

He said the President had "pledged to do everything in his power to get the money."

Alternate Plan

As an alternate means of securing roadway funds, Representatives Fallon and Lansdale Sasscer (D., Md.) are jointly sponsoring a bill to transfer the highway, now under the Bureau of Public Roads, to the National Park Service.

The move is designed to permit use of funds appropriated annually to the Park Service for expressway construction.

Fallon, chairman of the House Public Works Subcommittee on Roads, hopes to arrange hearings on the measure before Congress adjourns.

Fallon and others stressed the high death and accident rate on U. S. 1 between Washington and Baltimore. In the 18 months period ending last January, 62 persons were killed and 606 injured on that stretch. He said 80 per cent of the victims were nonresidents of Maryland.

"That's why this road project is primarily one of Federal concern; not just Maryland's problem," commented Fallon.

Two Montgomery County Justices Of Peace Dropped

Two Montgomery County justices of the peace have been dropped from the county payroll "in the interests of economy" by the County Council. Neither was notified of the dismissal.

The justices are William D. Clark, assigned in Rockville, and Samuel R. Robertson, stationed at Bethesda. Both men are 66. They had been paid $1500 annually by the county, plus another $25 as provided by State law.

Neither justice knew his salary had been cut from the budget by the council until July pay checks failed to arrive. County Manager Irving G. McNayr said "pressure of other work" prevented him from notifying them.

Sales Off 14% In First Week Of New Tax

By S. Oliver Goodman

In the first week of the new sales tax, Washington department store sales slumped 14 per cent, as compared with the same 1948 period, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

The drop for the week ended August 6 was attributed to heavy buying to avoid the tax in the previous week when local store sales soared 28 per cent above the corresponding period last year.

Despite the sag in the latest period, store sales here for the four weeks ended August 6 remained 8 per cent above last year, the Richmond bank noted.

Nationally, dollar volume of department stores declined 13 per cent for the week. In the Fifth Reserve District, the decline averaged 14 per cent.

Dun & Bradstreet in its weekly retail trade review commented that very warm weather in many sections discouraged shoppers. The agency reported there were many reduced-price offerings of summer apparel but they "attracted less attention than in previous weeks."

Retailers are looking forward to what they consider a test period during the next 30 days. The question is—how much will retail sales expand when the back-to-school movement ushers in the traditional fall buying season?

For the third week in a row, the Treasury also announced an offer of a billion dollars of 91-day bills. Bids on the latter will be received on August 15 and it will replace an issue of $863,023,000 maturing August 18.

BUILDING PROGRAM: Safeway Stores yesterday announced plans for the replacement of all substandard stores. President Lingan A. Warren said the new stores will be larger than those heretofore built and will be designed for a sales volume well above the average of Safeway's existing stores. "These properties," Warren said, "will be sold to investors and leased back under long-term leases. Young Finnish Sculptor, Kalervo Kallio Honored

KALERVO KALLIO, noted young Finnish sculptor, was guest of honor at a buffet supper given by Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja last evening, at their home on 44th st.

Mr. Kallio, son of a former Finnish president, Kalervo Kallio, arrived in Washington last week and is a guest at the Finnish Legation. He will stay there while the Minister and Mme. Jutila are on vacation in Minnesota. During his visit to Washington, he will work in the atelier provided for him at the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

You Pay and Take Your Choice Between Picnic, Glen Echo Trip

By Nicha Soure

IF it's a picnic you want, join the Buckeyes; if a Glen Echo outing is more to your liking, tag along with the New Yorkers!

The Ohio picnic is slated for August 24 and the New York outing will be on August 19, so first things first.

The New Yorkers, always a group that likes to share its fun, have invited its friends to attend its "New Yorkers' Night" at Glen Echo Amusement Park on Friday. Besides the regular amusements at the park, there will be swimming and dancing, too. Specially-priced strip tickets may be obtained by members and friends at the park office at 9 p. m. sharp on that evening.

Information concerning the affair, and also the monthly dances at the Shoreham Hotel beginning with the September 10 party, may be obtained from Miss Dorothy M. Gollinger, secretary of the society, at Kenmore 3-5004 during the evenings.

Ohio State Picnic Lunches All Prepared

Picnics are more fun for the women-folk when they don't have to spend hours fixing up a picnic basket. With this idea in mind the Ohio State Society will have a box luncheon ready for their picnic at the Palisades Park Field House on August 24.

After the luncheon, which will include sandwiches, potato salad and other picnic fare, there will be entertainment of interest to everybody. The Mack Triplets will head the list of entertainment which will include group singing, sports events for the men and slides and seesaws for the kiddies. There will also be more movies including cartoons, highlights of sports events of the past year and other features.

Members and their guests are encouraged to bring the children to this picnic which will be from 6 to 10 p. m. For further information about the picnic, contact John S. Bartlett at MIchigan 0860.

Indianans Grab Offer Of Williamsburg Tour

Remember the Williamsburg, Va., two-day tour recommended to the State societies by the Conference of State Society Officers several weeks ago?

Here's Indiana taking advantage of it. And why not? The minimum price for the tour is $10.15 and the maximum $12. That certainly is a bargain for a two-day trip.

The Hoosiers will take the trip August 27 and 28. At Williamsburg they will see the drama, "The Common Glory," as well as take a tour of Williamsburg.

Since the deadline for reservations is August 18, Hoosiers should contact the secretary, Mrs. Esther Costa, 930 Emerson st. nw. (Randolph 5689), as soon as possible.

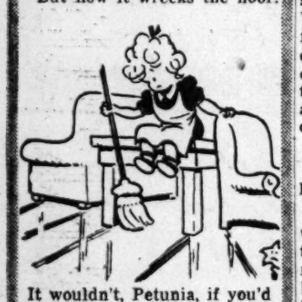
About Fixing Cracked Bottle

The glass mustard bottle of my antique caster set has been cracked and will not hold water for my plant. I have tried cement which did not seal it. Have you any suggestions? M. J. V.

As long as you use the bottle just for plants, a simple way to close the crack is to pour melted paraffin into the bottle and then quickly tip and turn it to completely fill the crack. Pour out remaining paraffin before it hardens. Be sure to cool the paraffin a bit before pouring in the bottle or the heat will break the glass. This will make the crack waterproof as long as the paraffin remains unbroken. Or, a more permanent way to fill the crack is to pour a high grade colorless spar varnish into the bottle, pouring out the excess when the crack is filled and allowing it to dry thoroughly. Before using either paraffin or varnish be sure the interior of the bottle is completely dry.

PETUNIA!

Moving, hauling, pushing
Is my most obnoxious chore.
I never mind the back-ache
But how it wrecks the floor!



It wouldn't, Petunia, if you'd slip heavy wool sox over the feet of those heavy pieces before you move 'em.

I have been unable to remove ink stains caused by a ball-point pen on a plastic covered table. All other ink stains have washed off. Some of the stains also remained on a pair of cotton shorts. Have you any suggestions for removal? V. A. M.

You might try this: Rub lard or clear vaseline into the stain, let stand to soften and then wash away with liquid shampoo. If this treatment brings improvement, but doesn't completely remove it, repeat. The same method may be used on the shorts.

If this doesn't remove the stain from the shorts use a bleach, but do not attempt using a bleach on the plastic. If the shorts are colored be sure to try the bleach on an inside spot before applying to the stain.

I would appreciate it if you would publish a recipe for blackberry wine.
An Appreciative Reader.

BLACKBERRY WINE

To every gallon of berries allow one gallon of boiling water and a half teaspoonful each of powdered cloves, ginger, cinnamon and mixed spice. Mash the berries well with a wooden spoon and pour on the boiling water. Leave for three days, then strain and add 3 pounds of lump sugar to each gallon of liquor. Stir until sugar is dissolved, then put into a jar or cask to work. No yeast is needed for this wine. When fermentation has finished, strain and bottle. Add rock candy and a few raisins while the wine is working. A wineglass of brandy to each gallon is an improvement, but not necessary.

We are troubled with a squeaking bedspring. Can you suggest a remedy for this?—H. L. McK.

Using an oil can, place a drop of oil at each place on the spring where two pieces of metal rub together. Work the springs up and down after the oil is placed on them to work it well into the meshes and better stop the noise.

Can you tell me where I can obtain information on canning fruits for diabetics? My home canning is done in cans.—M. R.

The book "Diabetic Menus, Meals and Recipes," by Betty M. West (published by Doubleday & Co., Inc., Garden City, N. Y.) has a complete chapter on canning for diabetics. Included are recipes for canning most of the common fruits.

Here are some general suggestions for canning for diabetics: Because cooking foods with saccharine in them causes the foods to become bitter, the best way is to can in water—adding the saccharine after opening the fruit. Can the fruits in water or their own juices just as you would can them with sugar. Water packed fruits keep just as well as fruits canned with sugar syrup if good sterile canning methods are used. When opened you can sweeten the fruit by using one grain of saccharine dissolved in one teaspoon of water to a pint of fruit. Put the saccharine into the jar of fruit and let stand for several hours or over night to thoroughly combine.

Where could I go to have some hand writing compared? E. D. M.

Will you tell me where in Washington I can buy wheels for a tricycle new or old? I saw the address in your paper one time, but I don't remember it. R. B. M.

There is a cycle shop located at 933 G st. nw. in Washington which has a good stock of tricycle wheels and the chances are good that they can supply you. Since there are so many axel sizes, your best chance of getting an exact fit is to send or bring in the old wheel.

Can you give me the address or phone number of some one who makes a business of stiffening and stretching luncheon mats (crocheted)? M. G. P.

Many of the hand laundries listed with the laundries in the yellow pages of the telephone book specialize in this sort of work. One such firm on 12th st. can be reached by calling Dupont 7700.

Please publish a recipe for dill pickle, the one not requiring brined cucumbers. M. V. D.

DILL PICKLES

14 pounds cucumbers (about 3½ inches long)
2 dozen stalks fresh dill
1 quart cider vinegar
2 cups salt, 2½-quarts water
Grape leaves

Wash cucumbers thoroughly, rubbing with hands to remove all soil. Pack them upright into sterile quart or half-gallon jars, leaving enough space in the top of each jar for dill. Wash the dill and grape leaves by whisking quickly through cold water to remove dust. Fold one stalk compactly and push down between the pickles; coil another up and place in the top of each jar. Heat vinegar, salt and water just to the boiling point; then immediately add enough to cover pickles. Over this lay 2 or 3 grape leaves. Seal and store in a cool dark place. The pickles will be ready for use in about 3 weeks. If desired, you could add a garlic clove to each jar.

Sleep Surpasses Coffee for Energy Stimulation

Many people who drink coffee to keep from falling asleep would be better off if they would sleep to keep from drinking coffee.

The real harm in drinking coffee is in using it to spur an already tired body into further effort. Nature has provided certain warning signals and, when man chooses to ignore those which indicate his need of restful, revitalizing sleep, he must expect, eventually, to pay the penalty of overfatigue.

Frequently it is overfatigue which is responsible for failure to sleep, not the coffee which has been used to maintain wakefulness. When that tense, overly tired stage is reached, only a good bed and gradual relaxation will bring on the needed, long overdue rest.

Does a Cold, Spiced Limeade Sound Tempting

DOESN'T this look cool? It's a spiced limeade, made with those big, juicy Florida limes now seen on the market. Here's how to make enough of this refreshingly different drink to serve six:

Spiced Limeade

Juice of 6 limes
1/3 cup sugar
1 cup water
1 3-inch piece stick cinnamon
1 teaspoon whole cloves
Ice cubes
Sparkling water
1 lime, sliced

Combine sugar, water, stick cinnamon and whole cloves in saucepan. Place over low heat. Stir until sugar is dissolved. Simmer 10 minutes. Remove from heat. Add lime juice. Fill 6 tall glasses with ice cubes. Divide spiced lime mixture between the glasses. Fill glasses with sparkling water. Garnish each with slice of lime.

In Soft, Mellow Finishes

Graceful, Functional Design Typifies Modern Furniture

After years of experimenting with modern furniture design, the designers and manufacturers have developed a type of modern that is rapidly gaining wide acceptance. This new version of modern is not of the startling different variety of a few years ago, nor is it stark with uncompromising straight lines. Instead, the lines have become more graceful with a hint of a curve now and then. Shape of the pieces, too, have been softened, and bases of large pieces have been raised off the floor so that they no longer resemble a packing box or refrigerator. It is rather interesting to note that one manufacturer has gone back to ancient Chinese pieces for the inspiration of his newest and smartest contemporary designs, and although simplified, they still retain much of the character of the historic originals.

The scaling of modern furniture has undergone a change, too, and the need for furnishings to fit into smaller rooms has been fully recognized so that it is now possible to find smart, lightly scaled pieces for rooms of any size.

The use of newly discovered woods such as Korina and Aldoro (naturally light colored woods with interesting grains from Africa) and new developments in finishes have resulted in wood pieces that, while still in the light tones, have more color and warmth than the earlier bleached woods, and are much easier to work with from a decorating standpoint.

This trend to more grace and beauty has extended to the upholstered goods, too, and you'll find that modern chairs and sofas have lost their square, boxy look and are now designed with graceful, sweeping lines.

At the same time that these external changes have been going on, the designers have also been busy adding more function to tables, buffets, dressers, chests, desk-chest, and dressing tables. With engineered interiors, these pieces now provide just the right amount of space for practically everything in the way of dining accessories, personal clothing, and accessories. Drawers, especially designed for shirts, ties, collars, shoes, gloves, handbags, and jewelry are to be seen in many of the pieces, and they do a wonderful job of providing a place for everything.

With all of these major improvements in today's furniture, there is no longer any basis for the old complaint that modern is too cold, for it is now both highly functional and very easy on the eye!

TYPIFYING the trend to more graceful modern design is this charming living-room grouping. While the tables are devoid of carvings and curved legs, a soft, graceful line is achieved through the delicately curved aprons and the finely scaled proportions. The soft butternut finish is significant of the style trend to the honey-color finishes in today's furniture. Note, too, that arms of the sofa have a pleasing curve and that the base is raised to prevent any suggestion of the old "boxey" look

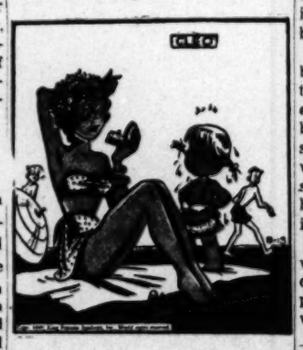
Just the Family

When having hot biscuits or muffins for the family dinner, serve a favorite conserve or preserve along with an extra pan of hot biscuits and there is no necessity or desire for any other dessert.

Motion Pictures

After seven years of age, children begin to really enjoy and appreciate motion pictures. However, they should never be allowed to go to a picture unless the parents know positively it is a suitable one. Any picture with a frightening or dramatic trend should be avoided until the child is big enough to know it is all fiction and nothing about which to be afraid.

SUSIE Q.



"Do you come here to swim . . . or WHAT?!"

Household Hints

To keep a green salad crisp add the dressing at the last minute and toss only enough to coat the greens with the mixture of vinegar and oil. If you want to vary a basic French dressing for the salad add a few tablespoons of catchup or chili sauce, a few diced anchovies, or a little crumbled blue or Roquefort cheese.

For a Saturday night supper menu serve broiled or boiled frankfurters with two salads—potato and cole slaw. Add mustard, dill pickles, and spiced beets and lots of thin slices of pumpernickel bread spread with butter or margarine. Dessert might be lemon sherbert with a topping of grated fresh pineapple.

Small meat balls in brown gravy are delicious when canned broiled mushrooms are added. Use the liquid from the mushrooms in the gravy. Serve over brown rice.

If you are planning to barbecue spareribs outdoors you'll need about half a pound of the ribs for each person.

Broiled tomatoes and a tossed green salad are delicious accompaniment for many creamed dishes dried beef, tuna, chicken.

Use finely cut scallions or chives to pep up a potato salad. Surround the salad with watercress and coarsely shredded carrot for a pretty effect, and be sure to dust the top layer of potato with paprika before serving.

Next time you make homemade yeast rolls sprinkle them with poppyseed just before baking.

Heat rolls for lunch or dinner the cool way—put them in the top of a double broiler, set over boiling water; keep the water simmering until the rolls are hot enough.

Tomatoes for summer salads are often nice peeled. To do so dip them whole in hot water for a few minutes, then plunge them into cold water (or hold under the cold water tap) and strip the skin off.

Dreams of 'Secret' African Valley

Osa Johnson Growing Restive On Uneasy Park Ave. Perch

By Hal Boyle
AP Feature Writer

New York.—Osa Johnson, the first lady of the jungle, lives on Park ave. now—and it makes her homesick for the serenity of Africa.

"I like my jungles because I don't have any competition there," she laughed.

"Here you get invited to dinner and right away you start worrying, 'What shall I wear and what will so-and-so wear?'

"But there I can wear khaki trousers and hunting boots and put my little gun on my shoulder and go out into the jungle and feel I am queen of all I survey. I can look up at the blue, blue sky and feel all Africa is mine."

She said she was going back, too, for one last trek to the land whose wild life was filmed by her explorer husband, Martin Johnson, as she stood guard with a gun.

Johnson was killed in a plane crash in California in 1937, and Osa was badly injured.

Planning a Motorized Safari

"I have a secret valley," she said. "I can't tell you where it is. It has never been explored, but Martin and I always vowed we would go back. It's teeming with big game—lions, rhinos, elephants, buffalo—everything. There must be at least a million head of big game in that valley."

She is planning an expedition consisting of two station wagons, six jeeps with trailers, and a helicopter.

"I can flutter over in the helicopter and tickle the backs of elephants and ostriches. You should see the ostriches fan themselves with their plumes as they run. They make Sally Rand look like a sissy.

"I want to make a full-length color film of wild life there. It's never been done.

Zebra Glistens in Sun

"Animals in zoos are out of their environment. They lose their color and become wishy-washy. But a wild zebra—he looks like black and white satin, sleek and fat and glossy. But the giraffe—he's a gorgeous bronze. He glistens in the sun."

Osa has kept busy since her husband's death. She has published nine books and is now writing four more for children, based on the life stories of her own animal pets. She is also completing a cookbook of exotic recipes, preparing for a lecture tour and negotiating a television contract. She has a library of two million feet of film taken by her husband on their travels.

Now 55, Osa is still as vivacious and energetic as the day she married Johnson at 16.

They Only Grew Famous

"I thought we'd live in Chanute, Kans., and grow a couple of kids and a vegetable garden, she said. "But Martin had an itchy foot. So I went off to the jungle with him, and I fell in love with it, too."

She estimates she has traveled "roughly 1,500,000 miles" in her career.

"We did pretty well for a couple of kids who started from nothing," she smiled.

Her six-room apartment overflows with souvenirs from her journeys. She writes at night under a shelf on which stands nine carved wooden heads from the Belgian Congo.

"They give me inspiration," she said.

Off They Go

"There is a certain blue haze about the African hills you find nowhere else," she said. "The English who live there never say, 'I'm going out on safari.' They say, 'I'm going out into the blue.'

"I wanted that blue on my walls. But it took me 27 paint jobs to get it."

Osa's favorite hobbies are fishing and cooking, and she spends a lot of her time in her kitchen.

"I'll bet you," she said, "I'm the only girl on Park ave. who bakes her own bread."

Don't Let the Neighbors Make Your Yard a Nursery School

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Comes summer, and there are always the inevitable clashes between neighbors about the behavior of their children. There is always some child who is upsetting the neighborhood by his antics, or someone else who hits and bites, or grabs another child's toys or won't play unless he gets his own way.

And coupled with these inevitable mishaps which accompany play, is the habit of some thoughtless parent of sending her own children over to play in some other yard and expecting this hostess-mother to keep the peace and see that nothing happens to her flock.

Angered by Imposition

Mrs. F. G. is in a state of rage because of the advantage her neighbor takes of her daily. "Every day my neighbor across the street sends her 2-year-old to play with mine. I have to keep watch as they always hitting each other with sand toys, or pushing or biting.

"If they aren't in trouble with each other, I have to keep watch to prevent the older children using them as toys, and pushing them around or getting them into dangerous situations. I have saved both of them from serious injuries only by this watchfulness.

"I resent this deeply. I find that any member of this family does not hesitate one moment to interrupt my work, besides expecting me, because I have a fenced yard, to be hostess to her children all day. What should I do in a case like this? I don't want them to be enemies of mine."

You should speak up for yourself. You can suggest in a nice way that if her child comes to play one morning, you'll send yours over to her the next morning. "Then both of us will have a free morning in which to get our work done," you may add.

Or, if you prefer that your children play in your own yard, you should make some suggestions to the neighbor so that she will appreciate the privilege of her children doing so, also.

Explain Your Trouble

Tell this particular neighbor, whose child needs supervision, that you will be happy to have her come over every other morning and knit, sew or read and keep an eye on the children, as your work suffers when you have to do this alone.

Suggest that her children bring their own toys and add them to yours, or that they share in the expense of replacement. Reiterate how glad you are to have the children have a safe place to play but that you can't bear all the burdens of time or toys

'Ice' Cracks The Crust of High Society

New York (AP).—Want to crash high society? One of the quickest ways today is to buy a famous gem or collection of jewels.

Society then will let dowr its barriers and invite you in just to look at your pretty baubles through lifted lorgnettes.

As proof of this truism in their trade jewelers cite the late Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, famous Washington hostess and owner of the Hope diamond.

"There is no doubt that any woman who owned that stone would be made socially in Washington," said Daniel F. Frey, executive director of the Harry Winston jewelry firm which purchased the fabulous gem from the McLean estate.

"When she gave parties, it was her entrance that created more attention than the arrival of noted diplomats, generals, or Supreme Court justices. In fact, many came to her parties only to see the diamond. She realized this and loved to show it."

Not For a Million

Frey said several wealthy persons had commissioned his firm to offer Mrs. McLean up to one million dollars for her gem, hoping they could thus duplicate her social success. But in her lifetime she wouldn't sell it.

Among the financial titans of the past who used jewelry to widen their fame or notoriety were "Diamond Jim" Brady and J. J. Hill, the "empire builder."

"Hill carried a heart-shaped emerald in his pocket as a good-luck token," said Frey. "It was quite a token—worth $250,000. And his estate sold it at a profit after his death."

Some jewelers think that for good taste and quality the greatest American collector was Mrs. Elbert T. Gary, wife of the steel magnate.

"One of her finest pieces was a rope of 166 perfectly matched single carat gems," recalled Frey. It was a chastely simple string of glitter—only six feet long.

The Hope diamond, valued variously from $250,000 to $2,000,000 in its ill-starred history, is currently off the market.

Tour for Charities

"We are sending it on a Nation-wide tour to raise funds for local charities," explained Frey. "It has such a reputation for bringing bad luck—perhaps now it will bring some good luck."

Some 500 jewelers have requested permission to display it. The Hope diamond's value comes not so much from its size—there are perhaps 20 other top quality stones that equal its 44½-carat weight—as from its unique blue color.

The base of the diamond market is still the man of middle income who will pay up to $400 for a half-carat engagement ring. Recently there has been an influx of foreign buyers seeking the larger stones for investment purposes. They feel jeweles will depreciate less than the uneasy currencies of their uneasy countries.

Jewelers also are excited over the prospect of reviving gem-wearing among men.

Jeweled rings are particularly popular at present with Texas oil millionaires. And they're competitive about them. They compare the sizes of their diamond rings, and the loser flies here and tells his jeweler:

The Family Scrapbook

Odds and Ends Pictures

Have you ever heard of an odds-and-ends picture? It is something that boys and girls as well as grownups will enjoy making.

First, one finds a smooth piece of board. The end of an apple box or an orange crate is good. A bottle of glue and all sorts of odds and ends plus a liberal mixture of imagination are all one needs to begin.

Bits of twigs, colored sand, pebbles, all sorts of things can be used to make fascinating scenes. A liberal amount of glue is put on the board and sand or pebbles are sprinkled on the parts that one wants for background. Twigs can serve as trees, posts, parts of houses or anything else that the imagination calls for.

After a few experiments, one will begin to get some very good effects—pictures that can be hung proudly in a child's room or elsewhere in the house. One of the most delightful things about this sort of picture-making is that almost anything may be used as an ingredient for your 'picture."

Covering your finished job with clear shellac will help preserve the picture and make the colors lastingly brighter.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Two Minds With But A Single Thought

The same mail brings two poems that look like first cousins. From Jess Veihmeyer of 307 34th pl. ne. comes:

It's awfully hot, but like it or not,
The summer months will go.
And then we'll complain (Oh, ain't we a pain?)
About the ice and snow.

In similar vein is the effort of Robert Forward of 904 Highland dr., Silver Spring, Md., (who misses Shirley Povich more than anybody else because he's Shirley's carrier boy and loses a customer when Povich goes on vacation). Bob's poem goes:

I beat the summer heat
By thinking of the snow
That used to come a-floating down
On every hedge and row.

And then I think of what I thought
While I would slip and slide.
For then I'd think of summer time—
I'm never satisfied.

LAW SAYS COPS MUSTN'T IGNORE THE DISTRICT LINE

Some time ago Mrs. M. S. K. complained about a District motorcycle policeman who is in the habit of chasing speeders until he nabs them—even if it means crossing into Maryland to make the arrest.

The Corporation Counsel's office says that speeding alone is not sufficient cause to permit a policeman to make an arrest in a foreign jurisdiction.

An officer in fresh pursuit of a felon may continue the chase as long as he likes. But speeding is a misdemeanor, not a felony.

However Inspector Arthur E. Miller, in charge of traffic, points out that speeders often are guilty of other violations—such as driving stolen cars, attempting to run down policemen, etc. It's those other violations which permit the cop to make his arrest in Maryland or Virginia, if necessary.

But on a simple speeding charge, says Miller, the policeman must use judgment. He can't stop the instant he gets to the District Line—neither is he supposed to go chasing his quarry all over creation.

If the pinch is made on the other side of the line (for a misdemeanor) the motorist can ignore the ticket or post collateral, as he chooses.

But if he ignores it, he may find a warrant waiting for him the next time he comes back to the District.

THE BOYS AT BETHESDA

"They have even removed the fans," says the complaint. "Imagine 30 or 35 boys in that stuffy, low-ceilinged room during a heat wave."

Not a very pleasant thought. And officials at Bethesda don't like it, either. But there's a limit to how much they can do to improve the situation.

They wish they could put in a 50-ton air conditioning unit, for the benefit of these boys and many others. But it would cost between 50 and 60 thousand dollars.

Besides, they'd have to install a new water tower, because the Washington Sanitary Commission can't spare any more water for the hospital, and it takes a lot of water to run one of those big cooling units.

One ward did have a fan, but it was ordered out by the chief psychiatrist, presumably for safety reasons.

But hospital officials realize that the boys need some kind of relief, and they're now trying to get a pedestal or ceiling-type fan for early installation.

PIPE DOWN, FELLAS

From time to time, readers ask me to speak a word in behalf of early morning quiet. So—here it is:

Some of us who retire early have to get up early—to deliver newspapers, milk, and various other things.

Some of us who work later in the evenings, or on night shifts, sleep later in the morning. Or try to.

And regardless of which schedule we follow, most of us have trouble getting to sleep on these hot summer nights. So we'd much prefer not to be disturbed before the alarm clock says it's time to get up.

But the only way we can all be sure to log the required amount of sack time is if everybody will remember that the other fellow likes to sleep, too.

One of my pet peeves is the guy who tunes his auto radio to a "wake up" program and lets it run at top volume while he waits for his regular "rider."

Another source of annoyance is the dairy company that doesn't provide its milkmen with rubberized delivery baskets; and of course the virile characters who play catch with ashcans.

Newsboys whose delivery wagons have metal-rimmed wheels don't help much, either. Especially inasmuch as some of those wheels sound as if they're square, rather than than round.

But the bird I would really like to see move to Vladivostok is our neighbor who owns the world's noisiest motorcycle.

He considers the period between 2 and 3 a. m. the ideal time for warming up his motor at great length, and then roaring 'round and 'round the block a dozen times.

PERSONAL NOTES

Tommy Brent, 1626 19th st. st. nw.: Wish I could help, but I can't. The fact that a $100 reward is being offered for the return of the dog certainly makes it obvious how much he means to his owner. But scores of pets (and other valuables) are lost every day, and we just don't have the room to advertise them in this space.

William N. Rydholm, Kappa Sigma, 1737 Massachusetts ave. nw.: Same answer as above. If you don't get your mascot back, try the Give-Aways again. Meantime, you might have some luck with one of our famous classified ads.

Harry Traub, 2743 North Lorcom lane, Arlington, Va.: Glad to hear you're feeling better now. Your suggestions sound good, and I'm forwarding them to our promotion director.

Mrs. H. F. Custer, Culpeper, Va.: I'm brave; I'll bet one ice cream soda the Nats do not finish last.

Handicapped Aid Plan Lauded

By Robert S. Allen

This is a long-deserved public tribute to a man of great courage and great humanity.

He is Paul Strachan, tall, deaf, and impassioned father of the national project to employ the physically handicapped.

STRACHAN

Strachan conceived this humanitarian institution while flat on his back in Johns Hopkins Hospital in September, 1940. It took him five years of unremitting effort to win congressional approval. Now firmly established and warmly supported gy leaders of Government, industry and labor, the project has made it possible for more than 500,000 handicapped men and women to obtain gainful work and the inexpressible satisfaction of being self-sustaining members of society.

In a few weeks, the 1949 drive will be launched at a Washington meeting that will be addressed by President Truman. Last year, both the President and then-Secretary of State George Marshall took part in opening the drive.

Strachan will be in the forefront of this year's campaign as he was in all the others. Discussing the program, he says:

"It was born of recollections of World War I, when disabled veterans were pushed around and ignored as soon as the parades stopped and the bands no longer played. It was born of vivid and poignant recollections of thousands of other handicappeds I had seen who were the discards of society. It was born of personal experience, as one 85 per cent physically disabled, and who, because of that disability, was cast upon the human scrap pile, despite a fierce and intense desire to live, to work, and to achieve."

It is a plan for a great national program of rehabilitation, training and aid for physically handicapped of all kinds. The project would completely revolutionize the handling of this problem in the United States. More than two-score Senators and Congressmen are sponsoring the bill drafted by Strachan.

Representative Gus Kelley (D., Pa.) senior member of the House Labor Committee, has already held hearings on the measure. But despite strong support in and out of Congress, the proposal is a long way from enactment. It is encountering vigorous bureaucratic resistance.

But that is not daunting Strachan. All his life he has had to fight for his ideals.

Fighting Scot

Strachan inherited his unquenchable spirit from a Scottish father.

His father was a crusading country editor in Michigan, Indiana and Georgia. He battled against political machines and for the underdog without fear or favor. On one occasion, his press was smashed by a mob. The elder Strachan borrowed equipment from a nearby town and issued his paper with a scathing attack on the mob.

Paul Strachan was born in Perry, Mich., in February, 1892. At the age of 14, he had become an expert typist and, quitting school, took a roving job as an "expert demonstrator." In the years that followed, he visited many lands and engaged in many occupations.

He prospected for gold with two sourdoughs in Alaska; was a steamship agent in the Orient; worked at various jobs in the Mediterranean, Australia, England and South America; and produced several movies in the United States. As Strachan puts it, "There were few places I didn't get to and little that I didn't do."

One of the things he did was to become a boon companion of Jack London, famed novelist. They went on several trips together.

In World War I, because of physical disability, Strachan was barred from military service. So he helped set up the Bureau of War Risk Insurance and was one of its first officials. Later, as a result of this work, he was active in organizing a union of Government employes. This in turn led to interest in vocational training and he authored and put through Congress the Federal Vocational Training Act.

No Reason for Awe

There is nothing backward about 36-year-old freshman Representative John R. Walsh of Indiana, but he admits a little stage fright when he hustled down to the White House on business for his district.

"Reckon I may be a trifle scared, or maybe I should say awed," grinned the tall, curly-topped Hoosier after he shook hands with the President. "It isn't every day a fellow gets to talk to the President of the United States."

"I know how you feel," Truman smiled. "I felt the same way when I used to come down here to see F. D. R. and sat in the same seat you're in. But now that I'm here in this chair, I can't understand how anyone can feel that way about me."

Committee Feud

The feudin'ist committee in Congress, the House Education and Labor group, which has been in uproar for months over Federal aid to education, had a blowup on another issue the other day.

Just before the committee decided to continue a probe of certain union leaders, hot words flew between Representative Andrew Jacobs of Indiana, chairman of the probe, and Representative Roy Wier of Minnesota.

Wier, a former union leader himself, after charging that "both sides were seeking publicity," barked "you've got a lot to learn" at Jacobs.

"Well, you're not exactly a font of wisdom," shot back Jacobs. "As for my alleged publicity-seeking, that's silly. In the six months I have been in Congress, I've called a reporter only once, to keep him from getting scooped."

"Oh, I do not say that you are not well-informed on trade unionism—you know a lot about it," backtracked Wier. (Jacobs was an attorney for labor unions before coming to Congress).

"The gentleman amazes me," snapped Jacobs. "In one breath he says I have a lot to learn and in the next he says I am well-informed. I consider that an oblique tribute to himself."

Benjamin Mandel, clerk of the House Un-American Affairs Committee, emphatically denies he is supplying Representative John Rankin (D., Miss.) with committee information, and also that he agrees with Rankin's racist views, as stated in this column Thursday.

3 Women Get Navy Hospital Internships

Women have cracked another domain long regarded by males as their exclusive own—internship in Navy hospitals.

The Navy yesterday announced assignment of three women doctors, recent graduates in medicine, to Navy hospitals as interns. They are the first women ever to be accepted in such capacity, the Navy announcement stated.

Among the three is Lieut. (j.g.) Suzanne W. Brown of New Market, Va., accepted for internship at the Naval Hospital, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md. She recently was graduated from the Medical College of Virginia.

After a period of active naval service, it was stated, the women interns will be eligible to compete for commissions in the regular Navy. Before World War II there was no authority to accept women as doctors in the Navy. With the advent of the WAVE program, however, the permission was granted.

At present, Navy spokesmen said, there are five other women doctors now on Navy duty, but these all received their intern training elsewhere before entering naval service.

Besides the three accepted for Navy hospital internship, 17 other women graduates in medicine have been assigned to civilian hospitals under the Navy's civilian intern training program, yesterday's announcement added.

The two other women doctors accepted for Navy hospital internships are Lieuts. (j.g.) Hannah H. Pendergast of Boise, Idaho, who will serve at the Chelsea (Mass.) Naval Hospital, and Mary W. Tilden of Jamestown, N. C., at the Great Lakes (Ill.) Naval Hospital.
